Communist Outbreaks In Italy As Gen. Eisenhower Arrives

Red-Inspired Violence Occurs In Italian Areas

Demonstrations Are Staged As General Eisenhower Arrives

By MICHAEL CHINIGO
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Jan. 18.—Communist-inspired violence against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's arrival in Rome flared throughout Italy today. At least one person was killed, scores were injured and more than 1,000 arrested.

Large-scale, Communist-backed demonstrations were staged in 19 major localities coincident with a series of strikes.

Demonstrator Killed

The first death reported occured in Sicily. There one Communist demonstrator was reported killed in a clash between police and an estimated 8,000 Leftist Socialists and Communists in Adrano.

Police at Adrano were forced to use machine guns after first employing tear gas to quell rioting. Ten Communists were wounded. Initial reports said 82 persons were injured and 1,005 arrested in the distrubances.

General strikes and violence were reported from Florence, Brescia, Parma, Piacenza, Padova, Cremona, Ancona, Pescara, Cagliari, Nuoro, Palermo, Messina, Taranto, Genoa, Venice, Como, Vercilli, Teramo and Fonsenza.

90 Minute Strike

In Rome itself the Communists ordered a limited 90-minute strike to begin at 3:30 p.m., and a one-hour sitdown strike for public transit systems.

A two-hour general strike was staged at Milan.

In the fighting in the Sicilian town of Adrano, where the one death occurred, 35 others were injured, 13 of them seriously.

Clashes between demonstrators and police occurred in Naples. In

BECOMES PENNSYLVANIA U.S. SENATOR TODAY

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Senator and Mrs. James Duff of Pennsylvania are shown at the Carlton hotel dinner given in their honor by Mrs. John Connelly and her brother, Howard Rigby of Pittsburgh. The new senator arrived in Washington Wednesday.

Duff Becomes U.S. Senator

Takes Oath Of Office At Washington Today

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Senator-elect James H. Duff of Pennsylvania takes his oath of office today—two weeks behind the crop of other newly-elected GOP senators.

John S. Fine, who succeeded Duff as governor of Pennsylvania this week, and state party leaders were on hand for the swearing-in ceremony at noon.

More than 1,000 Pennsylvania Republicans converged on Washington by special train and automobile for the ceremony. Duff will be feted at a giant luncheon in the Willard hotel following his oath-taking.

The GOP caravan was arranged by Republican state chairman M. Harvey Taylor, who was Duff's legislative leader during his governorship. Friends explained that Duff served out his full term as governor, and thereby went to the foot of the senate seniority list, to safeguard Taylor's position as president pro tempore of the state senate in Harrisburg.

Bombers May Return To U.S. Via North Pole

LAKENHEATH, Eng., Jan. 18.—(INS)—The possibility was reported today that some of the six giant B-36 American bombers which flew to Britain Tuesday may return to the United States by way of the North Pole. It was the first B-36 flight to Europe.

The return flight is being prepared now under strict security guard. The return following the dramatic, ocean-spanning flight from Texas with a full simulated bomb load, now is set for some time within the next 36 hours. Departure of the planes is dependent on cessation of violent headwinds now blowing over the north Atlantic and slowing all aircraft.

Separate Routes

It is understood that the pilots of the huge bombers are likely to separate their craft after the take-off and make independent returns to the states. Flight times are expected to range between 25 and 40 hours, with landings being made at separated points ranging all the way from Limestone, Me., to Carswell field at Fort Worth, Tex.

Although the routes for the return flight are secret, speculation is that some craft may cross polar regions.

It is also understood that during the return flights each plane will make simulated bombing in which they will use a combination of three practice methods. All are equipped to employ these methods involving dummy bombs, photography and electronic apparatus.

China Rejects U.N. Proposal For Cease-Fire

U.S. To Seek Action In U.N. Condemning Red China's Stand

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LAKE SUCCESS N. Y., Jan. 18.—The United States began rallying support in the United Nations today for a condemnation of Communist China which Secretary of State Acheson denounced for its "contemptuous disregard of a world-wide demand for peace."

The United States, acting after the Peiping regime rejected the U. N. proposal for a cease-fire in Korea as the opening phase of a Far Eastern peace program, will "go easy" pleas of the Arab-Asian turn a cold shoulder today to any bloc in the U. N.

One report today from London said that Indian Premier Nehru is believed planning a direct approach to persuade Premier Stalin and Communist China's Mao Tse Tung to join in a conference to discuss the world's major problems.

To Present Program

However, Chief U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin will call on the U. N. members for a strong common front against Communist aggression. He will present in the political committee, either this afternoon or tomorrow morning, a four-point program which will:

Condemn the Chinese Communist regime as an aggressor, demand it withdraw from Korea; request all U. N. members not to aid the Chinese Communists; activate the collective measures committee proposed in the Acheson plan, to consider steps for punishing the aggressor.

There is already widespread support for the U. S. "get tough" policy as a result of Peiping's rejection of the truce bid. However, there is evidence that a number of

Truman Plans To Seek Action Against China

Will Ask That U.N. Brand Red China Aggressor Nation

(BULLETIN)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—President Truman said today that the United States will ask the United Nations to go ahead and take action to brand Red China as an aggressor in Korea.

The President told a news conference that he will ask the UN to bring everything possible to bear on the question of branding Red China as the aggressor in Korea.

After China's Turndown

Mr. Truman's statement came after China had turned down the UN's proposal for a cease-fire order in Korea.

The President said that Secretary of State Acheson had consulted with him thoroughly on the situation and had his approval.

Mr. Truman declined to comment on reports that the Nationalist Chinese forces on Formosa were preparing a re-invasion of the Chinese mainland.

Organized Reserve And Air National Guard Calls Coming

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The air force today announced an immediate call-up of 150,000 reserves to bring into service all of its oragnized reserve groups and most of the air national guard wings.

There are 27 air national guard groups, 10 of which already have been called up. The program announced today would leave no more than four of five air guard groups in the inactive status.

The air force said the call-up will include a "major part" of the 60,000 volunteer reserve airmen and approximately 20,000 of the 240,000 volunteer reserve officers.

In the organized reserve, there are 25 groups. Four of these previously have been called.

The air force said "the call-up will include ordering all of the 21 remaining air force reserve train-

KOREA—Strong United Nations motorized spearhead that probed into Kumyangjang (1) ran into a Red trap but most of the units fought their way back to safety, taking up positions south of the town. Meanwhile Chinese Communists massed along the Suwon-Ichon axis were reported shifting strength east (shaded arrow) to the Wonju sector. Northeast of Yongwol (2) sharp fighting was reported as Allies clashed with about 1500 enemy troops. Elsewhere a lull in the large scale ground fighting continued as enemy jabbed sporadically at the United Nations lines all along the front.

Allied Planes Pound Enemy Troop Convoys

Red Troops Appear To Be Preparing For New Big Drive

By HOWARD HANDLEMAN
(Far Eastern Director, I. N. S.)

TOKYO, Jan. 18.—Fierce fighting erupted in South Korea's vital west sector late today and raged also in the east-central area as Allied planes pounded Red troop trains and trucks rolling south for an expected big push.

A strong U. S. Eighth Army tank-paced patrol met heavy resistance from what the unit's commander described as "a large enemy force" at Kumyanang, 22 miles southeast of Korea's Communist-held capital of Seoul.

International News Service War War Correspondent Lee Ferrero reported at 6:10 Thursday evening (4:10 a.m. EST) that the encounter began late in the afternoon and "the fighting is continuing."

Some 16 hours earlier, two United Nations companies had broken off a stiff fight with two Chinese platoons five miles northeast of Kumyangjang. The town is a four-way road center midway between two of the main routes leading down the western seaboard from Seoul.

Big Enemy Army Poised

A 90,000-man Chinese army and North Korean units were poised for an assault south and southeast of Seoul following Red China's rejection of the UN cease-fire proposal.

Along the whole 140-mile front, armored UN patrols probed north-

Wilson Predicts Mandatory Controls On Wages-Prices

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Mandatory controls on wages, prices, rents and materials were forecast today by mobilization director Charles E. Wilson to forge an American economy powerful enough to block what he called the "aggressive designs of Soviet Russia".

"There is no other way," he declared.

Outlining the means for equipping the nation "to talk the language, the only language the Kremlin understands," as he put it, Wilson declared:

Must Invoke Law

"Voluntary methods will not work. That has been proven. The power of the law must be invoked. It must be used for the allocation of materials for prices, rents and wages—for whatever controls are necessary to prevent inflation, to promote production for defense and provide a fair distribution of commodities among all our citizens."

Wilson spoke in Philadelphia last night where he received the

Eight Cabinet Nominees Are Named Deputies

By JOHN PAGET
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—Gov. John S. Fine's cabinet nominations were snarled today in a legal dodge calculated to overcome temporarily bi-partisan opposition in the Senate.

The issue may be settled after the legislature ends a recess February 5.

Designated Deputies

Eight of 15 department heads selected by Fine were officially designated deputies by the governor to allow them to function and to sidestep the tardiness of the Senate to confirm their secretaryships. Seven other cabinet officials, held over in their respective posts from the Duff administration, were said by Fine to be able to continue on the job by virtue of the commissions issued between the 1949 and 1951 sessions of the General Assembly.

Fine acted on the advice of Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti whose nomination and subsequent withdrawal from consideration, riles the 20-member Democratic bloc plus several Republican senators. Fine said Margiotti will not quit under fire and has some work to complete before leaving.

Says He Can Continue

Shake-Up Occurs In British Cabinet

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Britain's Prime Minister Clement Attlee named Health Minister Aneurin Bevan today to be minister of labor and national service in a cabinet shake-up involving three posts.

The changes, presaging a possible further reshuffle, were viewed as an apparent prelude to stricter manpower controls during defense rearmament.

Should war come, the 53-year-old Bevan, a former coal miner, would handle mobilization.

Bevan succeeds George Isaacs, 67. Isaacs was given the post of minister of pensions.

Succeeding Bevan is Hilary Marquand, former minister of pensions. Marquand will have no cabinet rank as did Bevan and his responsibilities are greatly curtailed.

Hillsville Plant Employes Are Given Awards

Service and safety were featured Wednesday night in Hillsville, when a dinner of employes of the Michigan Limestone and Chemical Company was held in the school building.

Forty-nine employes of the company were honored for service from 25 to 40 years with gold watches. At the same time the outstanding safety record of the employes was stresed by Irvin L. Clymer, president of Michigan Limestone and Chemical Company.

H. W. McKee, Jr., Toastmaster

H. W. McKee, Jr., superintendent of the Hillsville plant was the toastmaster of the evening. In addition, he was one of the 49 receiving watches, his service extending back for 35 years.

An orchestra provided a musical accompaniment for the program and short addresses were made by H. Ward Lewis, general manager of the Pittsburgh division of the company, President Clymer and H. S. Lewis, vice president, both of whom came from Detroit for the dinner. A magician mystified the 60 or more present with his legerdemain. William F. McCombs directed the pep singing.

Lloyd W. Strayer, chief civil engineer, who retired January 1 after over 31 years service, was one of the men presented with a watch. The two with the longest service records were Vincenzo Commisso and Domenico Nastasio, each of whom has nearly 45 years service.

Long service with the company is the rule rather than the exception at the Hillsville plant, This may explain in part why for the past 106 days there has not been a lost time accident there.

Would Approve Probe Of Authority To Send Troops, Says Truman

By WILLIAM THEIS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Truman said today he would welcome a congressional resolution expressing approval of executive authority to send troops abroad.

The president told his news conference again that, under constitutional powers given a president, he will take any step necessary to meet a foreign threat to the United States. He said this means, if necessary, the sending of more troops abroad.

The president said, in response to questions that he would appreciate an expression of confidence from congress on his constitutional authority.

Such a move is being sponsored by administration leaders in congress now.

McCreary Hurt In Truck Crash

Accident Occurs At Routes 422 Intersection

Glenn E. McCreary, aged 42 years, of 104 S. Mulberry street, is in the New Castle hospital, seriously injured as the result of a collision between a tractor-trailer truck, driven by Hoess C. Mackie, of Bloomsbury, N. J., and a light pickup truck, operated by Mr. McCreary, at the intersection of old and new Routes 422, at The Harbor. A dog which ran out onto the highway was blamed for causing the wreck. The accident occurred at 3:15 p. m., Wednesday.

Avoids Hitting Dog

According to the investigation by state police, both vehicles were coming east, when a small dog ran out onto the highway. McCreary put on his brakes and pulled to the right to avoid hitting the dog, and the big tractor-trailer job, loaded with metal-framed sash and doors, followed in the same direction. The tractor trailer struck the rear end of McCreary's truck, knocking

New Wage Offer To Be Made To Miners

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—John L. Lewis is expected to discuss with his 200-man United Mine Workers policy committee today a wage offer increase of 20 cents an hour from northern coal operators.

Industry officials said the voluntary offer would be made to Lewis by Harry M. Moses, former U. S. Steel executive and now head of the Bituminous Coal Operators association, representing mines producing more than 150 million tons of soft coal annually.

Directors of the Southern Coal Producers' association also met this morning to study the possibility of making a similar offer to Lewis.

The southern operators are undecided on what course to follow and are expected to await the outcome of Moses' talks with Lewis before making any decision.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Pa Newc is told of a true but almost unbelievable incident which occurred in the grocery store of Mike Bowden, East Washington street, this morning. A young lady entered the store and politely asked to use the store phone, which permission was granted. Mr. Bowdn could hardly believe his own ears when the young miss pulled out a grocery list and began phoning the order to another grocer so that he would deliver the goods.

Several large pieces of army equipment, no doubt destined for overseas assignment, moved over New Castle streets on Wednesday. One piece which Pa Newc was told was for the loading and unloading of tanks and heavy guns. The machine had exactly 22 tires of the large type. Two big olive drab colored loading machines also wended their way through the downtown section.

Residents about the district have discovered that the unruly winter of the past number of weeks has been especially hard on concrete steps. The ice and snow became lodged in between cracks and pushed a number of steps out of shape. Much repair work will be necessary in the spring to eliminate the dangerous conditions now existing.

Rural dwellers will find a big clean-up task confronting them come spring, Pa Newc opines. The heavy snows and rains have been unmerciful on fences and other outdoor property of the farmers. Many advertising signs along the highways have been

Truman-Pleven Conference Has Significance For Soviet

By GEORGE DURNO
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—U. S. officials saw today in the forthcoming Truman-Pleven conference another major opportunity to demonstrate to Russia that western powers cannot be divided by Kremlin propaganda.

President Truman readily invited Rene Pleven to Washington when the French prime minister said he had important business to discuss. They will meet on Jan. 29 and 30.

In the diplomatic mill at the moment are notes from the U. S., Britain and France to Moscow asking for a clarification of the USSR's proposal for another Big Four conference of foreign ministers.

These notes are on the verge of being dispatched, and there certainly could be no action before Pleven arrives in Washington.

Secretary of State Acheson, in so many words, denounced the Rusisan proposal because it would be limited to a discussion of "disarmament of Germany".

Russia's Effort Seen

This, in the opinion of U. S. spokesmen, is the wedge Russia is trying to drive between the major western powers. Pleven's visit for this reason will be welcome.

French opinion kept the United States from rejecting outright the Moscow proposal. It is recognized here, however, that rearmament—not disarmament—of western Germany is a touchy subject with the French.

French fear of German resurgence, in Washington's opinion, is

This balmy day is a pleasure and I know we could use plenty more, the sun has returned and the snow disappears and the temperature says fifty-four. But it isn't yet spring by a long shot, don't pack all your woolens just yet, for there's plenty more winter before it is spring, we'll have zero and worse you can bet. But while it is here let's enjoy it, forget all those bleak winter nights, but don't look for snow drops or blue bells as yet, or any of spring's lovely sights. Let's take what we get when we get it, be thankful and hope for the best, it's hardly mid-winter but springy at that, these days are the ones we like best.

that he was legally able to continue until the session's end as attorney general, as could Gene D. Smith as secretary of the commonwealth, not only under the "to have and to hold until superseded" commissions from former Governor Duff because they both are constitutional officers. There is no fight among Democrats over Smith, but his nomination is snagged by the dispute over Margiotti.

Fine blistered the opposition for its delaying tactics and said: "I do not propose to be highjacked into any dictated action because of a strong dislike which opposition leadership may have for an official whose name is not offered for confirmation." Minority leader John H. Dent labeled the maneuver as "pure trickery".

CHINA REJECTS U.N. CEASE-FIRE PROPOSAL

delegates intend to consult their home governments before voting approval of such a vital step.

Holding Conferences

The United States, Britain and other western nations were holding conferences on forming an anti-aggression front in the U. N. The Arab-Asian bloc and the 20-member Latin-American group also conferred, foreshadowing tense sessions in the political committee in the next several days before a final decision is taken.

It is taken for granted that the Indian delegation will balk at the U. S. policy and will seek again to contact Peiping for negotiations. Also the Soviet Union is certain to attack the American proposals although many delegates are convinced that Russia is delighted by the Peiping rejection.

Consider Chiang's Offer

Meanwhile, reliable sources hinted that the U. N. unified command in Korea may now reconsider the offering of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to supply three divisions of troops for use in Korea against the Communists and his desire to attack the China mainland from his stronghold on Formosa.

Chiang's offer has until now been kept in abeyance. In any case, however, it would not be put into motion until after the U. N. has condemned Communist China as an aggressor.

The Communists in their reply to the U. N. charged that the idea of a "cease fire first" was an attempt to win a breathing spell for American troops. Peiping wanted to talk first, about Korea and Formosa, and admit China to the U. N. in place of the Nationalist regime before a cease fire becomes operative.

Acheson turned these proposals down as "unacceptable."

WILSON PREDICTS WAGE-PRICE CONTROLS

Poor Richard club's gold medal of achievement in ceremonies commemorating the 245th anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birth.

Facing Huge Task

He disclosed the government will authorize spending 87 billion dollars for military equipment within the next two years, plus about 10 billion dollars for non-military aid to allied nations, atomic energy development and raw materials.

In plain-spoken terms, Wilson called upon the public to buckle down for the huge task which he said "will demand much from us in sacrifice, in courage, in ability".

"We are engaged in a fight for survival," he said bluntly.

"Whatever the causes for delay up to now, we must proceed with courage, speed and forthrightness to adopt the controls which will insure stability and fairness of our civilian economy."

ward as much as 25 miles and at several points engaged in an increasing number of clashes with Red vanguards.

In the east-central sector heavy fighting flared Wednesday and continued Thursday, portending a possible new enemy effort to sweep around the Eighth Army's inland flank.

Ferrero reported earlier that a heavy toll of Communist lives was being taken by UN troops and planes in the battle near the Tungsten mining center of Yongwol.

Yongwol lies 40 miles inland from the Sea of Japan and 23 miles northeast of Chungju, big rail-highway hub which pivots the Eighth Army's new line in the central sector.

Air Strikes Aid

Ten miles northeast of Yongwol, a UN force came to grips with 1,500 Red troops Wednesday and combined with well-timed air strikes to kill 350 to 400 Communists in the first day of the battle.

Low-flying planes sent the Communists fleeing in all directions from high ground and UN ground fire hit the Reds as then emerged from cover.

Elsewhere northeast of Yongwol, other UN troops collided three times with enemy units up to battalion strength.

A fresh portent of the imminently anticipated enemy offensive appeared when U. S. Fifth Air Force B-26 light bombers spotted six Communist troop trains and blasted five of them before dawn Thursday.

The bombardiers reported one of the trains was demolished and the other four damaged. How many Red soldiers were killed or wounded in the trains was not estimated.

Hit Large Convoys

The "night intruder" B-26s also found and hit several large enemy troop and supply road convoys in both South and North Korea.

Over the North Korean capital of Pyongyang a Soviet-type MIG-15 jet fighter made a single pass at one group of B-26s, then streaked away. The bombers were not hit.

That the invaders were moving armor to the battle sectors was indicated by the spotting of two Red tanks eight miles southeast of Hongchon which is 22 miles north of Wonju in the center of the peninsula.

Both tanks were hit by Fifth Air Force planes.

Armored UN ground patrols continued aggressive probing punches along the central as well as the west sector.

One strong Allied patrol Wednesday reentred Wonju, 25 miles north of Chungju, but found no enemy troops inside that bomb-battered, flame-eaten junction city.

Mrs. Galbreath stated that the Near East is the cradle of all three monotheistic religions, namely, Judasim, Christianity and Mohammedanism. The study of these peoples, their customs and locations might be compared to an oriental rug, which our minds associate with these countries.

EVERYBODY'S JOB

The current expansion campaign of the Greater New Castle Association is a job that, to be successful, requires the co-operation of us all.

A city alive to its possibilities needs an agency which can serve as a clearing house for all civic problems. Usually this body is the Chamber of Commerce but here the organization is the Greater New Castle Association.

There is a real need for the organization but it cannot function at its best without sufficient finances to work. To raise these finances the present campaign is being conducted.

Sometimes it almost seems that New Castle citizens who have lived here many years fail to appreciate how fine a city this is. In the past two years a number of new citizens have come in and their observation is that New Castle is a fine city, one with possibilities but that the possibilities are not always exploited.

It is time we did exploit our many advantages here. It is time we re-examined our city and our resources. Much has been done to diversify industry here but there is much more to be done in the way of improving the city.

Such a job naturally falls upon the Greater New Castle Association insofar as leadership and direction are concerned. But the work and the money must come from us all.

Let's quit selling New Castle short. Let's realize that we have a good city that can be made better.

REARMING JAPAN

Having disarmed Japan and Germany, the U. S. now faces an unpleasant dilemma. Russia and Communist China, unless they reverse their policies, will eventually try to take over both disarmed nations. Should the U. S. then offer no resistance, and let bolshevism create German and Japanese armies and war production to be used against this country? Or should Americans be sent to fight and die to defend countries that were killing other Americans less than six years ago?

It is becoming increasingly obvious that the only escape from this unpleasant dilemma is to let Germany and Japan rearm for their own defense. That, too, is an unpleasant answer, involving the risk of our having to fight Japan and Germany later—or even of having one or both join forces with Russia and China to destroy us and divide up the world among themselves. But there seems to be no other choice that would not be worse.

Little progress in this direction with respect to West Germany has already been made. But the events of recent months show that the need for strengthening Japan is even greater.

Japan and Russia formerly tended to offset each other in Asia. That balance of power was upset with the U. S. demilitarized Japan, and was further disturbed when China lined up with Russia and was revealed as a major military power. Chiang Kai-Shek's defeated and abandoned forces are no offset to Communist power in Asia, and we can hardly hope to redress the balance with American troops. But if Japan were formidably armed for her own defense, the outlook would be vastly improved.

PULLING TOGETHER

Everybody is familiar with the damage that can be done to reputations by whispering campaigns. In a speech at Tulsa, Okla., Henry B. DuPont, a vice president of the DuPont Company, called attention to the damage that can be caused by false rumors of a special sort—the gossip that makes big business the object of envy and suspicion and that aims to build a barrier between big and little firms.

The American business system, as Mr. DuPont points out, is "a working partnership of independent business units." Big and little businesses are mutually dependent on each other. Like any delicately adjusted machine, the system works best when the various parts function in harmony. If the gears clash, the whole system slows down.

There will always be a place for honest criticism. But there is no place for deliberate attempts to create dissension, to persuade the public that big business is necessarily bad, and to set big and small business pulling against each other instead of in partnership.

LET CONGRESS DECIDE

Whether the president is right or wrong in thinking that he has the personal authority to send American troops anywhere it suits him, he will still do well to follow the counsel that has now been given him by Senators Douglas of Illinois and George of Georgia. Both of these Democracts believe that Mr. Truman should not act independently in a matter of this kind but should ask and obtain the consent of Congress.

This is sound advice. That it came originally from some Republicans may cause the president to spurn it but if he does, it will only widen the split between the White House and Congress. It will also inspire many persons outside Washington to fear that the nation has a potential dictator on its hands.

Provided that the evidence is there to support his action, Mr. Truman need not be afraid that Congress will reject his proposal. And if the evidence isn't there the proposal ought to be rejected.

Wonder who first called it Lake Success?

If you think you're confused, talk quietly some evening to an 18-year-old lad who is scheduled to graduate from high school next June.

In View Of News Of The World

By J. C. OESTREICHER, INS Foreign Director

Expect Howl From Russia

The announcement by Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick, British high commissioner for Germany, that the Allies plan to review the cases of convicted Nazi war criminals still in jail is expected to result in a howl of complaint from Soviet Russia.

In point of fact, the disclosure did come as a surprise, particularly Kirkpatrick's statement that the reviews may be extended to the major war criminals convicted at Nuernberg and now languishing in Berlin's Spandau prison.

The British commissioner, long an expert on Germany and student of the German mentality, takes the view that "hatred and revenge are bad counsellors."

'Persecution' Is Unjust

He also said that "persecution" by imprisonment is unjust.

But it is also a fact that the international military tribunal which handed down the Nuernberg sentences weighed each case with utmost care. There was unanimous agreement among the judges when the verdicts—ranging from execution to acquittal—were handed down.

The charge has been made that the Katyn Forest massacre of Polish officers and soldiers was glossed over improperly, and that the Russians were responsible for it, not the Germans then on trial.

There also was the legalistic claim that the tribunal exceeded its authority by acting on an "ex post facto" basis by identifying as crimes acts that had been committed before there was a written international law against them.

But the tribunal invoked the name of humanity and unwritten rules of warfare in the course of prosecution. The Nuernberg proceedings laid open to world inspection and condemnation what is now termed genocide, or the mass murder of peoples.

One of Chief Criticisms

One of the chief criticisms of Nuernberg was the fact that it presented the spectacle of victor nations decreeing punishment for the vanquished.

Many persons believe that some such impartial group as the international court of justice at The Hague would have been better qualified.

They also feel that the trials set an extremely dangerous precedent in that the leading losers in any future war are made liable to persecution and extinction with even less attention to fact and guilt than was evident at Nuernberg.

This may or may not be the case.

But it is apparent that Sir Ivone did not speak without due consideration of all angles.

Significant Reservations

He made three highly significant reservations.

1—Any alteration of a war criminal's sentence must be approved on a four-power basis—in other words Soviet Russia must agree with any reduction made.

2—The Allies must conclude that application of mercy will be "profitable" to them.

3—With regard to Nuernberg, he mentioned only Grand Admiral Raeder and Admiral Karl Doenitz.

Both defended themselves on the grounds they were naval officers carrying out wartime orders, and had nothing to do with preparations for war or Nazi politics.

Raeder was sentenced to life, mainly because of his violations of the rules of war with unrestricated submarine attacks, and because he almost crippled the Allies with his "wolf pack" U-boat technique.

Doenitz escaped with a sentence of only 10 years in jail.

Thus Kirkpatrick apparently has no thought of going easy on wobble-headed Rudolph Hess, who wanted to be Fuehrer of Germany, the notorious Funk, the unsavory Von Schirach or any of the others growing older each day in Spanda rispu nd dau prison.

But even in the cases of Raeder and Doenitz, the Soviet may be expected to roar. What they have done with their Nazis is regarded by Moscow as its own affair. They kill them or utilize them, depending upon expediency.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

THE CHILD'S FAMILY LIFE

Year by year more teachers are growing aware of the child in relation to his family. More and more they realize they can understand him better, win his cooperation better, and help him learn at school better as they know his parents and entire family better. Teacher participation in the PTA and increasing emphasis on family life in teacher-training have contributed to these changes. Back of these have been the growing accumulation of facts about child development and family life and the study and discussion of these facts in professional books and magazines for teachers and professional conferences and institutes.

For a good many years teachers of home economics in the junior and senior high school have been giving courses in family life to the future mothers of the United States, though relatively few boys (future fathers) have been attracted to these courses. There have developed some courses in the social sciences studied by boys and girls together at the junior and senior high school levels.

Place in Family

More recently some teachers of the elementary grades are discovering ways to make their pupils, while studying reading, arithmetic, spelling and the like, conscious of their places in their respective families. These teachers even may attempt to inspire their young children to help at home and to share in the responsibilities there. How wonderful if the school were to make helping at home by children popular, make it "the thing to do." My bulletin, "How To Teach Your Child To Help at Home" may be had in a stamped envelope sent me at 235 East 45th street, New York, N. Y.

At the convention of the National Council of Family Relations at Denver last September, Dr. Ralph G. Eckert of California declared that teaching of good family life at school could be started as early as the first grade. He reported a practical procedure. Accordingly, the teacher writes on the blackbord—as the children think of them—all the big and little jobs at home that have to be done to keep everything going smoothly there. After the list has grown large, they start another list of the jobs the youngsters think they might take over. A third list itemizes those chores the children actually do. The children sensing the discrepancy often declare their intentions of doing more of these chores at home.

Help at Home

Sunday school teachers might well apply such procedures and strive in all sorts of ways to make children conscious of their obligations as members of the family and more ready to help at home. Also leaders of Cubs, Brownies, Blue Birds, Scouts and the like might work in these directions more than they usually do.

Along with freedoms discussed in high school, there also might be more discussions on home responsibilities in terms of democracy. Then a high school girl hardly would conclude that her mother should be her personal servant and valet and a high school boy hardly would maintain that his mother should be his tailor and bootblack. Such procedures at school might free many mothers from slavery. How can there be democracy in a home where children are tyrants and mothers are slaves?

Just Folks

ABOUT FOODS

So many dishes in the book
For granted now are taken,
For no one ever names the cook
Who fried eggs and bacon.
The man who first an oyster downed
To hunger, added courage,
And surely she should be renowned
Who thought of making porridge.

We know how sandwiches began,
And pork found better roasted,
But was it woman or a man
Who first a bread slice toasted?
Who thought that mincemeat would be fine
With crust above and under?
Whenever I sit down to dine,
About such things I wonder.

So much for granted now we take.
Well fed, we're all contented.
But still for every pie and cake
Some one experimented.
And this is what I wish I knew
Whene'er I bend above it:
Who first invented Irish stew
For me to grow to love it?

ON THE KOREAN FRONT — Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff: "The United States Air Force in Korea is doing a tremendous and magnificent job."

MINNEAPOLIS — Republican National Chairman Guy Gabrielson: "President Truman is a persistent man. He wants to force upon the country these unnecessary, dangerous (Fair Deal) measures although neither the Congress nor the people ask for them."

ALBANY, N. Y.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey: "Either we are in the greatest danger in our history, as I believe we are, and as I thought the administration believed, or we are in no danger, as some others believe. It cannot be both ways."

DANGEROUS 'MINES'!

Some Private Opinions

(By HENRY McLEMORE)

If you keep telling yourself something long enough and often enough, you are bound to believe it. . . . The best example I know of this is baseball team owners. . . . These hard-bitten, tight-fisted, squeeze-a-dime business men — most of them, anyway—have convinced themselves that they aren't in a business at all, but are operating a national institution like Yellowstone Park, and are as essential as the Navy.

I'm a grim fellow, and don't like to laugh, but I can't help from bending double when I read statements by baseball team owners concerning the national emergency saying, "Naturally, we'll do what the President tells us to do," and "For the sake of the nation we'll keep baseball going as long as possible, but will bow to the wishes of the government," and "We do not intend to ask for any special treatment for our players insofar as the draft is concerned. . . . ."

In the name of Heaven, why should they? I love baseball, and know how my fellow Americans love it, but I also love power companies, grocery stores, and all the other businesses which go to make for comfortable, happy living. So long as baseball sells tickets, baseball is a business, pure and simple, and for baseball to be such a good sport about a national emergency just slays me, men, just slays me.

There should be no law against shooting people who stay in phone booths longer than five minutes. That is, of course, unless you yourself are in there. That makes it entirely different. There are few things more maddening than to stand outside a booth for five minutes and then watch the fellow you thought was about to come out start reaching in his pocket for another nickel—excuse me, a dime, these days.

What this country needs is a good five-cent nickel.

I loathe the expression "brunch," "house guest," "yakety-yak-yak," and "pardon."

The fashionable thing to do today seems to be to sit around and knock the President. Will someone please tell me the name of any man, living or dead, with the mind large enough to handle to everyone's satisfaction the problems of the world, circa 1951.

So far as I am concerned, he doesn't exist.

One thing they don't teach in labor unions is plain, old-fashioned courtesy. Union might do well to add this to the curriculum. Example of what I mean: a piece of furniture was delivered to my house. A desk, in fact, to replace an old one. I said to the two men who brought it that we'd have to move the old one out of the way to put in the new one.

"We don't move anything," one of them said. "Nothing. If you want anything moved you gotta get somebody else. We just deliver."

That was all right, except for the way the little speech of rights was delivered. Wouldn't it have been just as easy for the deliverers to have declared their rights a bit more graciously? After all, an eight-hour day, with time and a half for overtime doesn't have to make a boor of a man. Capitalists have manners, at least.

Opinion One Man's

By Walter Kiernan

As we understand it now, Mr. Truman has full power to send troops anywhere he wants. . . . But he had better ask Congress before he does it.

We are indebted to Sen. Paul Douglas for the clarification. . . . Now we know exactly what is the situation. Repeat—What is the situation?

I just reread the constitution, using a large magnifying glass, and there is nothing in there about this point, but it may be we are operating under an expanded edition.

Anyway the point is taken late. . . . We have a lot of fellows in Korea who didn't get their bon voyage messages from Congress.

And it was no voluntary 60-day cruise either.

But any time is a good time to establish that the constitution is more concrete than elastic even though it has been bent considerable in the last dozen years.

If it isn't a good document, why are we so terribly proud of it?

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

William Lyon Phelps, who delivered an average of 100 paid lectures every season, also made a number of appearances "on the cuff" at church bazaars, benefits, and the like. In one courtesy appearance at a New Haven church, Dr. Phelps had the audience in stitches with some choice anecdotes, then begged reporters present not to include them in printed reports of the meeting.

"I'll be using these stories all season," he explained, "and it would take the edge off them if they appeared in print."

The reporters respected his entreaty. One, in fact, wound up an extremely complimentary review with the statement, "Dr. Phelps punctuated his remarks with a number of hilarious stories that cannot be published here."

Mrs. Crothers wore a preoccupied look at dinner. "Junior's been at Yale now four weeks, and we haven't heard a word from him. When did you write him last?" Mr. Crothers said without hesitation, "October 9th. I looked it up in my check book."

PEST HOUSE

We had a pest house a few years ago. It was away out by it's self. It was used for taking care of patients with communicable disease.

People did not go near it. They were afraid of getting a disease.

We do not have any of those terrible diseases any more.

Vaccination and sanitation and education have removed the need for a pest house.

We still have a few jails. How come?

State Police Say:

Holders of learner's permits who pass their drivers examination on or after January 15th, 1951, will be issued a 1951 operator's license. This license will be valid until January 31, 1952. Those who passed their examination prior to January 15th will be issued a 1950 operator's license which must be renewed before February 1, 1951.

From Me To You

By MESEEALL

If you remodel your home . . . your store . . . or regrade your yard . . . it's nice to look around to see what others have done. Many publications are printed today concerning remodeling of homes . . . new kitchens especially . . . The housewife supposingly spends the most of her time in the kitchen and her argument is . . . why not have it convenient and beautiful. So all effort goes thataway.

* * *

When the building trade holds an exhibition of new ideas and materials thousands go to see . . . when a new home is opened for inspection . . . thousands go to see . . . When a new building or factory is opened for inspection . . . thousands go to see. We, the people, like to see what others are doing . . . and to carry some of the ideas over into our own way of living.

* * *

So it is with this idea . . . smoke control . . . Pittsburgh has tackled the problem of smoke in the air . . . and a million people outside of the Pittsburgh area have gone to see the results . . . Columbus, Ohio has worked on the subject . . . pictures have been shown before and after . . . and again thousands and thousands of people have gone to see the improvement.

* * *

People in this community are thinking along the same lines . . . what a boon soot-free air would be to the housewife . . . to the store owner and manager. To the worker in the mills, factories and shops . . . For soot-clear air would not only make the job of keeping house easier . . . it would make the population more healthy. Soot laden air tends to bring on colds . . . the respiratory system easily gets clogged up with soot particles . . . and once clogged reduces resistance to the cold bug.

Proper firing of heaters (coal type) proper controls on coal burning equipment is about all that is needed to clear the air of dirt. Many local coal dealers have knowledge of the solution . . . We believe this polution of air topic could be cleared up voluntarily . . . But it will take everyone's cooperation. Are you interested

Washington Calling

(By MARQUIS CHILDS)

Price Control Difficulties

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Something more than six pounds of documents dealing with the national economy and the budget have now come off the government printing presses. They are stuffed with figures on spending and taxes that run to dizzying rows of zeros.

But the plain fact is that those figures are pretty meaningless so long as the pressures for inflation are unrestrained. The housewife who sees the price tags in the grocery store moved up from week to week knows more about the facts of life than the theorist learnedly discussing how to stabilize prices.

Controls Are Regarded As Necessary

Both the housewife and the theorist have long been convinced that price and wage controls in some form are necessary to check spiralling prices. But how to apply such controls is something that the administration has not been able to agree on.

How it is said that controls in some form will be applied by February 1. Whether they will be across the board or selective is still under study.

If you can manage to keep from going bankrupt in spite of the inflation, there is a certain horrid fascination in the politics of the delay over price and wage controls. In the cast of characters involved are clearly identifiable types that no Hollywood casting office could possibly miss. In general there are three lines of force represented.

First Is The Politician

First is the politician. This part is played by Michael Disalle, a former mayor of Toledo, Ohio, with the title of director of price stabilization. Disalle is a roly-poly figure with a shrewdness that understands what members of Congress are talking about when they say that the heat is on over prices and he wants to do something about it—almost anything that will give even temporary relief.

Next comes the college president. Alan Valentine, president of the Univeristy of Rochester until he came to Washington is perfectly cast in this role. He has had a distinguished academic career and besides he has held directorships in several large corporations. He is Disalle's boss with the title of administration of the economic stabilization agency.

Third Principal Is Industrialist

The third principal is the hardboiled industrialists. Here again you could not improve on Charles E. Wilson, who left the presidency of General Electric to become director of defense mobilization. Wilson has a massive frame and a voice that rolls through a conference like thunder. All his life he's been accustomed to getting things done as quickly and as directly as possible.

Leaked to the press two weeks ago was Disalle's idea of a 30-day price freeze. This, it seemed, was it. But others, including Valentine, were doubtful of the workability of such a temporary expedient.

Then just about the time a public announcement was expected Wilson was called in. He began to ask some embarrassing questions. How many exceptions would be claimed by individual business firms? Someone guessed that there would be 175,000. But it might run as high as 500,000. That would be out of a total of approximately 2,300,000 business enterprises to be controlled.

Plainly An Impossible Idea

Wasn't it true that if each exception filed was not passed upon individually by the stabilization agency, then individual firms filing the exception would not be bound by the freeze? Yes, that was true.

Since the economic stabilization agency has only the rudiments of a staff, it seemed to be plainly impossible to do such a job.

Instead of a price wall, there would be a barrier as full of holes as a piece of Swiss cheese. So the 30-day freeze order was called off at a press conference that had its embarrassments for Disalle.

The legend is that Disalle was the thirty-first person to be approached by the White House for the job of price stabilizer. He took it on condition that he have final authority over prices. Back in Toledo for a brief visit the other day Disalle's friends and admirers gave him a testimonial dinner. Responding he talked about some of his troubles in Washington and added:

Struggle Goes On

"Well, anyway the worst that can happen to me is that I'll be sent back here where there are people who know me and like me."

The struggle to arrive at a workable plan is still going on. It is, of course, bigger than any individual or group of individuals since at stake is the economic destiny of each one of us. It is not so much that there are angels on one side of the controversy and devils on the other. Rather, there are what appear to be almost insuperable obstacles in the way of realistic price control. One is the necessity of building up a huge staff. The other is the agricultural law which exempts foods from controls if the farmer is not being paid a parity price. But even with these obstacles, and they are formidable, to wait much longer is like waiting for a volcano to erupt.

Looking At Life

By ERICH BRANDEIS

One of my readers complains that I don't mention "the little homey things" in my column as much as I used to.

"For instance, your wife," she writes. "You used to tell us so much about her. You used to write about your neighbors, their little dogs, your trips, etc.

"Please go back to those interesting little things occasionally."

The letter came from a very nice woman in a small Pennsylvania town.

I can tell by her handwriting that she is a nice woman—a kindly woman of even temper and good disposition. I can also tell by it that she is intelligent and well-educated.

(Did you know that handwriting reveals all that? You'd be surprised how much I learn about my readers just by their handwriting!)

It wasn't really a letter. It was a four-page greeting card, and on it she wished my wife and myself a very happy New Year.

On the front page of the note was the reproduction of a painting —a lovely arrangement of pink blossoms.

It was the sort of arrangement that is typical of peace, contentment, spring, sunshine and the evenly-balanced normal, happy little ways of living.

Somehow that picture is allegorical. I might almost say that it gives the answer to my reader's question.

There used to be a time—and not so long ago—when peach blossoms, the wife's cooking, the neighbor's dogs, and all those other "little" things made up the average person's life.

Everything was normal. Everything ran along smoothly. Prices were going up, yes, but so did wages. There were unpleasant happenings, but they were in the minority.

The most important problems were the everyday problems of husband, wife, children, home, neighbors.

Looking at life, as I try to do, meant looking at those little things that were really the big things in those days.

One of the most reliable indicators of what is in people's minds is the mail a writer gets from his readers.

In those days of "little things" my readers used to write me about the personal subjects that concerned them most, their own immediate lives. Popover recipes, children, gardening, pets—those were their concern.

But it is different now.

Men and women everywhere have become citizens of the world. They have come out of their offices, their shops, their kitchens, their gardens into the whirlpool of great events.

The little boy who played in the neighbor's garden a few years ago has become a soldier in Korea.

The steel that used to go into the making of their refrigerator is now used to manufacture tanks.

Instead of puddings and canasta their thoughts now are of A-bombs and jet-planes, of war and survival.

Life has become dangerous, complicated and uncertain. Nobody knows what tomorrow will bring.

Thus—and here IS the answer to my reader's question—all of us no longer look just around us, but UP and AHEAD!

Little friends and relatives of Gerald F. Sankey gathered at his home, 1509 Wooly avenue, Wednesday to celebrate his first birthday. Games were the pastime of the afternoon with pictures of the youngsters taken during their activities. Later, a light lunch was served by the honored guest's mother, Mrs. Findley Sankey, aided by Mrs. Dorothea Lusk. Many lovely and useful gifts were received by the young honoree.

Declares Senile Are Problem Of Local Areas

By AL SPIVAK
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—Pennsylvania's aged men and women who have become too senile to take care of themselves today were described as the responsibility of local communities rather than the state.

Dr. Hilding A. Bengs, mental health commissioner, said adequate facilities should be provided at a local level for old people who are senile but not suffering acute mental ills.

"The problem has to be met very soon," said Bengs. "Almost one out of three persons admitted to state mental institutions is over 60 and we don't consider a great many of them as acute mental cases."

Senility, Bengs said, is of no great medical consequence as long as it is not accompanied by actual mental disease.

"Everyone of us will acquire senility if we live long enough," he said. "We get certain tendencies like forgetfulness and we can't consider this as a sign we should be mental patients."

When an old person has developed senile traits, and cannot be cared for by his family, the community in which he lives should take over, the mental health expert said.

"A man or woman who has spent a lifetime in a community should not be transported many miles away and placed with strangers in a state institution," he asserted.

Special Facilities

Special facilities will be available at state mental hospitals for senile patients, Bengs said.

All of the contemplated new units, he explained, are one story tall to avoid steps, with only a short distance to the dining room and ample provisions for custodial care and treatment.

"The unfortunate thing at this date is that younger victims of mental ailments sometimes are deprived of state hospital beds occupied by old-timers who are merely senile," Bengs said.

"Once we complete treatment for an aged person and he settles down and loses his acute mental condtion it is hard to get him back into the community," he said.

"Of course," he added, "many families still cling to their old grandmothers and grandfathers if they can and provide them with care and affection."

However, he said, if they cannot be taken care of at home they should be placed under the wing of their local government.

"County homes, for example, no longer serve paupers," he pointed out. "We have public assistance for the indigent, so homes might be turned over for use of the aged."

Pennsylvania municipalities might follow the lead of St. Petersburg, Fla., he said, which has inaugurated an all-out program to help old people by providing recreation and guidance as well as simple care.

"A community must realize that it owes a debt to an aged person who has been useful to it during his life and now needs a comparatively small bit of help,' declared Bengs.

Today's Fashion Flash

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(INS)—A mode-conscious male said today: "Designers should consult women before they create fashions!"

The spokesman on style—a socially-prominent Gothamite who declined to be quoted by name—said he believed the new "pyramid coats" and "padded-hip suits" will be costly to a woman's dignity, to say nothing of her health.

He put it this way:

"In those pyramid coats with their spindly shoulders and flaring hemlines, a woman has about as much figure beauty as a bowling ball.

"And I'm getting tired of watching all my dates go on diets so they can get skeleton-thin enough to wear padded hips so they'll look like they were before they went on the diet!"

Anonymous critic or no, America's top designers this week are showing hips jutting with crinoline and coats shaped like upside-down cones.

They're style tops for 1951!

Farm Guides To Be Issued

Expect Government To Give Guides On Crop Production

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The agriculture department is shortly expected to issue production guides telling farmers how much of each crop the nation will need this year.

The Production and Marketing Administration, through its various branches, is working up a comprehensive guide plan to be announced as soon as possible advising farmers what the balance in 1951 production should be.

The guides will take the place of the more rigid acreage allotments which have been removed from all crops except tobacco, rice and peanuts.

The agriculture department early this week is expected to announce the country-by-country breakdown of the remaining 600,000 bales under the government's cotton export quotas.

The department in late fall set the total exportable cotton this year at 3,496,000 bales. All of that allotment has been allocated for importing countries except 600,000 bales.

The disposition of that remaining quantity is expected momentarily.

The office of foreign agricultural relations announces that U. S. cotton exports in November were running ahead of last year.

Exports of cotton from the U. S. in November amounted to 387,000 bales of 500 pounds each. That made a total of 1,452,000 bales for the first four months of the season.

Cotton exports for those four months were 14 per cent above the 1,284,000 bales exported during the corresponding period of 1949.

The agriculture department reports that world flaxseed production showed a slight increase in 1950 over 1949.

World flaxseed production is estimated at 141 million bushels in 1950. That compares with the 1949 revised estimate of 139 million bushels.

SPRING REVIEW

The vibrant countryside abounded with hundreds of robins, bluebirds, flickers and other birds. Singly or in loose flocks of a dozen or so, the robins would fly from tree to tree or to a patch of greensward to hunt worms. Bluebirds hovered investigatively about inviting trees or perched quietly on fences and telephone wires. The air resounded with the calls of flickers and the cooing of mourning doves. Once, the scream of a redtailed hawk silenced all the songsters within hearing. Yes, the miracle of migration was once again under way.

Pastures and marshy fields were at times blackened with redwinged blackbirds, grackles, Brewer's blackbirds and their kindred. From time to time the birds would rise in unison and wheel off to what they considered greener pastures.

On every hand little bands of doves, meadowlarks, and pipits fed contentedly on the roadside berm, gleaning weed seeds or picking up occasional tidbits tossed aside by passing motorists. Even the ordinarily shy prairie horned larks were much in evidence, their little ear tufts showing plainly in the bright spring sunshine.

The foregoing observations made last week in central Texas between Breckenbridge and Weatherford, a couple of towns just west of Fort Worth, were of species which spend the summer in the central sections of the midwestern states. Robins and mourning doves observed as far north as Louisville, Kentucky, were those that spend their summer in the middle Atlantic states. In other words, few if any of the species observed in Texas as ever find their way to the northern limits of their range.

A question often asked is, "If robins are here all winter why are they not seen more often?" Well, most of them spend the greater part of their time where food such as winterberries, various privets, poison ivy and Virginia creeper berries, bittersweet berries and a host of others abound. Since most of these fruits occur in dense thickets the birds have no reason for venturing far from their cosy retreats. Occasionally, they will resort to barnyards, pig pens, chicken runs and even city backyards for a welcome change of diet or perhaps, because of the growing scarcity of their natural foods.

Shortly, reports of local citizens who have seen robins will begin coming in. These, if we may repeat, are not newly arrived southern birds, but those who are themselves about to take off for their summer haunts in Canada.

Migrating birds do not fly at top speed. Indeed, flights are so leisurely that our familiar songsters seldom average more than 20 or 30 miles a day, traveling a few hours and then feeding for a day or more. It seems certain that the normal rate of speed of the migratory flights would best conserve the strength of the birds and eliminate the fatigue that would result from effort required for great speed. The advance northward is at the same rate as the advance of the season.

Curiously, those species which winter south of the United States as well as most of the northern species that winter in the Gulf States wait until the season is well advanced in their summer homes before beginning the long northward journey. Then, it is made so rapidly that they actually catch up with the season as well as those that proceded them. Also, there are those ambitious individuals which arrive at their nesting grounds far in advance of the season; the vanguards of the hosts that follow.

Yes, it may be a bit early to discuss the return of the birds, but as the poet Shelley aptly expressed it, "If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind?"

Enter And Leave Auto By Curb Side

—CHIEF HANNA

Want to commit suicide?

One good way to flirt with death is to get out of an automobile into traffic, according to R. D. Hanna Chief of Police for the American Automobile Association's Pedestrian Protection Contest.

"Walking out into traffic to get into a parked car or leaping out of a car into traffic is inviting drivers to hit you," said Chief Hanna. "Drivers do not want to accept that invitation, but it is sometimes impossible for even the most alert driver to anticipate a person jumping into his path from a parked car." he warned.

"I know it is tempting for a driver to get out of the car the 'easy' way, opening the door by the driver's seat and stepping into traffic, rather than sliding across the seat and leaving by the door adjacent to the sidewalk. But in this case the easy way is a dangerous way," Chief Hanna continued.

"Drivers also tend to walk around their parked cars right out into traffic where they stand unlocking the door while approaching cars must swerve to avoid hitting them. Here again, a person invites death just because it's the easier way," he said.

Chief Hanna asks all drivers and automobile passengers alike, for their own safety, always to make it a rule to enter and leave automobiles on the curb side.

Plans To Have Extra Hydrants

Councilman Richard I. Davis today said that the principal reason why he asked and received councilmanic permission to purchase six new Darling fire water hydrants was because he wanted to be supplied in case hydrants were broken. Several were damaged by bulldozers during removal of snow in late November. The hydrants cost between $90 and $100 each.

Reds May Have 30 A-Bombs Now

Such Is Latest Estimate Made

(Special to Central Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Government scientists believe that a little common sense is better than military intelligence as a basis for estimating the number of atomic bombs Russia may now have.

They say that Russia could not have achieved an atomic explosion at all without building the capacity to produce about two bombs per month.

There are no hand methods for getting the explosive out of uranium. The work has to be done in big separation plants, and the plants have to be built before you get the substance.

Since an atomic explosion in Russia occurred about 16 months ago, the Soviets by now must have at least 30 atomic bombs, unless the factories have been idle.

Czechoslovakia boasts that it has 40,000 to 50,000 people engaged in mining uranium for Russia, so it is a fair conclusion that the factories have not been idle.

Pilot Superiority—Air superiority in any future war will depend more upon the pilots of the opposing forces than the actual aircraft to a large extent.

This point was demonstrated recently by captured Russian newsreel films showing that the Russia-built MIG-15 is fully equal to the American F-86 Saber jet in both speed and construction.

The fact is that the Sabers are shooting the Red planes out of the Korean skies in every encounter —even against overwhelming odds. This is attributed to the superior training of the American pilots.

An Air Force spokesman said that the ability of pilots flying the Soviet ships has been "spotty" —some pilots handling their planes expertly and others showing marked inexperience.

The spokesman said that the top speed of the MIG-15 is 660 miles an hour—only 11 miles slower than the record set by the Saber under ideal flying conditions.

Disagreement—Korea isn't the only place there's fighting going on.

In Washington, there already are reports of disagreement between the government's top economic officials on the question of price controls. President Truman recently told his news conference that eventually across-the-board controls undoubtedly would be necessary.

At present, however, reliable sources say that Economic Stabilizer Alan Valentine and Price Administrator Michael DiSalle didn't see eye-to-eye on the matter of imposing price curbs on new automobiles.

According to this story, DiSalle was against the auto price controls and was willing to make further attempts to work out a compromise with the industry. However, Valentine overruled him and ordered controls put on.

There undoubtedly has been an undercurrent of some disagreement in the stabilization program, and there is sure to be more. Veteran Washington observers say it is impossible to administer such a program without some conflicting views.

However, it is not believed that the difference between Valentine's ideas and those of DiSalle was serious enough to have repercussions. The price chief has shown that he is willing to go along with the administration's program all the way.

DiSalle's 30-day price freeze proposal was recently overruled by Valentine, a move in which DiSalle concurred.

Governors Plan Defense Parley

TRENTON, Jan. 18 — The governors of Pennsylvania and Delaware have been invited by Gov. Alfred E. Drisroll of New Jersey to confer on mutual defense problems.

Driscoll said he has suggested Jan. 26 in Trenton for a meeting to consider the same type of mutual military aid pact as he recently concluded with New York. The agreement, subject to approval of both legislatures, allows the states to use each other's military and civil defense forces in the event of an emergency.

Driscoll said the time and place of the conference with the Pennsylvania and Delaware governors was still indefinite and subject to their convenience.

Hon. George W. Hardy, Jr., judge of the Second Circuit Appellate Court, of the state of Louisiana, attorney and former mayor Shreveport, will be the speaker at the January dinner meeting of the New Castle Executives Club, in The Castleton, Friday evening, at 6:30 o'clock.

President E. L. Stitzinger has asked Attorney J. Glenn Berry to introduce the speaker.

Judge Hardy will take as his subject, "God; the Supreme Court and Us." Seldom has the club had a more important subject, or a better man to discuss it, and his address should be most interesting.

Corn Ear Worm Survives Winter In Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—New research findings of concern to Pennsylvania's extensive sweet corn production occupied the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association meeting at the Farm Show. Dr. Charles W. Rutschky, Penn State entomologist, reviewed a study just completed on insects striking sweet corn last year.

For the first time, Dr. Rutschky declared, there is scientific evidence to prove that the corn earworm can survive winter conditions in Pennsylvania and emerge the following spring in sufficient numbers to cause early and severe infestations of sweet corn.

Dr. Rutschky set out traps in York, Philadelphia and Bucks counties during the winter of 1949-50. Corn earworm larvae were stocked in the traps, which were studied throughout the growing season. He said he found adult moths in the traps in all 3 counties in June and July.

Of practical importance, Dr. Rutschky revealed, is the fact that the corn earworm did not infest sweet corn until about 4 days after the corn began silking. This permits more concentrated effort on fighting the pest within a shorter time period than was previously suspected, he explained.

The pelican gets its name from the Greek pelekus—meaning ax.

Taverns To Make Paper Cup Tests

HACKENSACK, N. J., Jan. 18. —They're trying to take the beer away from the glass in Hackensack.

Patrons of four local taverns are going to be guinea pigs for the health department's paper cup test.. Health officials think the old beer glasses, mugs and steins may be a health hazard when not properly cleansed and washed. So they want to try specially treated disposable paper cups that "don't affect the taste of the beer and provide just as good a head," Frank A. Witt, health officer, explained.

Reveal Aid Given In Korea By United Nations Members

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 18—A partial lifting of the secrecy on United Nations contributions to the war effort in Korea disclosed extensive aid from a score of nations in medicine and relief but combat forces were restricted to 14 countries.

An official survey, as of January 2, left out specific strengths and locations of the 14 nationalities fighting in Korea or enroute to the battlefields, but gave the impression that the units are there to stay.

U. N. officials assert that as far as is known, not a single contributing nation has sounded out the unified command on the advisability of withdrawing its fighting forces.

Aside from the U. S. and South Korean troops, which comprise the bulk of the U. N. strength in Korea, the British reportedly have the largest number of combat troops in the theater. At Lake Success, Sir Gladwyn Jebb repeatedly has said that approximately a British division is fighting under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's unified command.

Other Combat Groups

Other combat groups were listed as follows:

Australia: numbers not given, said to be approaching several thousand.

Belgium: over 1,000 army troops. Belgium also furnished air transport planes.

France: an infantry battalion; The Netherlands, two or three infantry companies; Greece, unstated number of infantry; the Philippines, a regimental combat team, seventeen tanks and a tank destroyer.

Thailand: an infantry combat team of 4,000 men; Turkey: an infantry unit of 4,500 men. Canada: the Princess Pats infantry regiment, with the remainder of a 10,000-man unit awaiting orders to proceed to Korea or Europe.

New Zealand: a special combat unit of artillery, enroute to Korea; Ethiopia: an offer of 1,069 men and officers recently accepted for Korea by Gen. MacArthur. Disposition at the moment not known.

Colombia: a special infantry battalion offered and accepted but to be given final training by U. S. officers before sailing for Korea. Panama and Costa Rica offered bases and volunteers.

Nationalist China: offered three infantry divisions and 20 C-47 transport planes.

Make Survey Of Plant Space Here

Daniel Woolcock, one of the city's engineers and Police Captain Willis McMullen toured the city seeking vacant plants, for the purpose of obtaining data as to the possibility they may be used in the war effort.

Captain McMullen photographed the structures, both inside and outside, while the engineer procured data as to construction and floor space.

It was said today they found some structures which could be utilized to help the war effort.

The survey was ordered by Mayor John F. Haven after a New York firm requested information concerning available buildings.

South Dakota is often referred to as the Coyote state.

HEIGHT IMPORTANT FOR IRONING BOARD

An adjustable ironing board may be your best buy if women of different heights do the ironing in your home.

Women prefer a board 3 to 4 inches higher than the regular 31-inch height, according to a study made at Cornell university. This extra height tends to keep the body more upright and the shoulders less rounded, thus affording more room for the lungs.

Many of the new ironing boards are of perforated metal which allows steam to escape from the bottom and prevents the padding from becoming damp and soggy.

Some ironing boards have a shelf slung underneath in a position that is handy to put the iron on. This permits use of the entire work surface for spreading the material to ironed.

For extra width for ironing large pieces, a board of heavy plywood can be easily and quickly clamped to the regular board. This wide board will cut in half the ironing time for shirts, aprons, table linens or bed linens.

EXPERIENCES HELP TO MOLD A CHILD

Today most parents do not think of obedience in children as an end in itself. They are concerned with ways and means of effectively molding their child's character. The end result, which the farsighted parent holds before his mind's eye, is the person the child will become.

Psychologists tell us that environment helps mold a child. Rich experiences contribute to growth in personality. Excursions to places of interest are ways of enriching a child's life. Even a trip to the store may afford new and different experiences. There are many things to see along the way and many people to meet.

It is difficult for a child who has everything done for him to develop self-dependence. It is difficult for a child who has all his plans thought through and all his problems solved, to develop skill in thinking for himself.

The request to "do it himself" comes sometime during a child's second year. Usually the task he has picked out is much too difficult for inexperienced mind and hands. Failure may sometimes be profitably experienced, but not too often. Help your child each day to live up to his highest capacities. This does not mean that the child should be pushed; quite to the contrary. It means that parents must observe and know their child. When they can make it possible for him to achieve the best that is in him each day as he builds for his future.

VENTILATE ROOT CROPS IN STORAGE

Better take a look at those root crops in storage. They need air circulation, among other conditions, for satisfactory keeping.

Root crops stored in bins or barrels give off some heat, and unless ventilation carries off this heat they soon start to shrivel or rot.

Orange crates and baskets make good storage, and for added ventilation alternate layers of root with layers of clean straw.

If the cold cellar has an outside window it can be adjusted to provide the desired degree of ventilation.

CARE TO BE TAKEN IN FREEZING MEAT

Thorough chilling of the freshly slaughtered carcass is important before cutting it in pieces for wrapping and freezing.

Pork is best if cut and wrapped as soon as well chilled or within 48 hours. After beef is thoroughly cooled it may be aged or ripened for a week before cutting and wrapping.

If freezing in the home locker, do not put too much unfrozen meat in the freezer at one time. Five per cent of the capacity of your freezer is the maximum to add at one time. Leave air space around each package, then when meat is frozen you can stack the packages together. This may mean that you cut and wrap only a part of the carcass each day.

Instead of overloading the home freezer, it would be to your advantage to have the carcass cut and the meat frozen at a commercial locker plant. You can transfer the frozen meat to your own freezer for storage.

Use good quality wrapping materials. Be sure to push out all the air as you wrap the meat, for it is air around the meat that causes it to deteriorate during storage. Wrapping like aluminum foil, cellophane, or plastics mold easily around the meat and exclude the air. Laminated papers offer excellent protection but are harder to handle than foil or plastics. Ground meat must be packaged in very good wrapping material and frozen immediately after grinding. When cutting the carcass, divide the cuts into tender and less tender ones, making each cut of the size best suited to your family. Label each package and freeze at once.

Will Erect Signal Corps Depot Near Scranton In Spring

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The Army announced today that it will start construction this spring on a new signal corps depot near Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The depot, which is expected to employ about 5,000 persons, will be on the 1,400-acre former military reservation known as the Tobyhanna tract and now owned by the state of Pennsylvania.

The Army said the state will be paid for the property, plans call for the completion of the depot early in 1953. It will have two million square feet of permanent storage space.

The announcement said construction will be under the direction of the Army district engineer office in Philadelphia.

INFORMAL WEDDING

"(1) Is it proper for a girl when being married in a suit to walk down the aisle with her father? There will be a maid-of-honor and best man. Or should she merely enter through a side door with her father, the same as the groom, and go right to the altar? (2) If the wedding is held with only the immediate families present, is it proper to send out engraved invitations to a reception, to be held at a relative's home, to friends and relatives? If not, should it be made known when the forthcoming marriage is announced that an 'open house' reception will be held? (3) How much should be paid to the Minister, organist and singer? (4) Is it necessary to have ushers when the wedding party is so small and the bride does not wear a bridal gown? (5) Is an invitation mailed to the Minister, or is he invited in person when the church arrangements are made? (6) When are the Minister, organist and singer paid?"

Answer: (1) It is entirely proper and advisable for the bride to walk up the aisle with her father even though she will dress informally and have only two attendants.

(2) Send informal notes of invitation, since you will dress informally. Were you to dress formally in traditional bridal attire, you should then send out formal reception invitations.

(3) The organist and the soloist usually have a specified fee, the amount of which you should inquire. The clergyman should receive upward of five dollars, depending upon the financial circumstances of the groom.

(4) Ushers are optional in a small informal wedding.

(5) Send a written invitation to the Minister and his wife.

(6) The bride should give the organist and the soloist their fees when she makes arrangements with them for her wedding or when she sees them at her rehearsal. The best man must pay the clergyman's fee (given to him by the groom) sealed in an envelope before the ceremony.

Teachers Enjoy Annual Dinner

Ben. Franklin School Faculty Enjoys Event

Speechless is the word for the annual Franklin dinner of the teachers of the Benjamin Franklin junior high school.

That's exactly what it was Wednesday night in the Fountain Inn when the teachers held the annual affair, speechless. Not a speaker was was reminded of the story about the farmer's daughter, not a cliche was uttered, in short there were no speeches.

Instead the program consisted of entertainment by the Westminster Players and after enjoying these talented young men and women for an hour we're hoping this formula for banquets starts a trend.

Two-Part Entertainment

Under the direction of Prof. Donald Barbe the players presented a two-part entertainment. The first half was after the old vaudeville style—songs, dances, patter, with two of the performers using original songs that rate a gander by Tin Pan Alley.

The second half was a scene from "Family Portrait", a play recently presented by the drama class of Westminster. It was the Upper Room scene when Mary comes from Nazareth seeking her son Jesus. The two women arrive in the inn just after the Last Supper has been served. Four players took part in this moving scene.

Miss Ruth Lewis was in charge of the evening's program and asked the group to sing the Doxology before dinner was served. This was directed by Miss Esther Gibbons, with Mrs. Lillian Buckmer at the piano.

Superintendent of Schools Frank L. Burton and Principal Gerald Nord were introduced but to reiterate, no speeches. Mrs. Jean E. McCreary presented the players.

The dinner is held annually upon the anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birth.

Man Dies Of Burns Sustained In Fire At Johnstown Plant

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 18.—(INS)—Albert Weible, 27, of Hooversville, Pa., died yesterday of burns suffered in a fire that caused $100,000 damage to the National Radiator plant in Johnstown.

The fire was touched off Tuesday when a spark from a welder's torch ignited iron dust used in making plastic metal.

SALLY RAND SUED

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Fan dancer Sally Rand, whose figure is her fortune, has been sued for a big, round figure—two million dollars—in a dispute over a smaller sum.

Al Wagner of Mobile, Ala., head of the Cavalcade of Amusement filed the suit against Miss Rand and the National Broadcasting Co. yesterday in U. S. District Court in Chicago.

Wagner said the fan dancer falsely claimed on a radio program that he owed her $23,000, thus damaging his reputation and credit.

Obscurantists are those who look with dislike and apprehension on the progress of scientific knowledge.

Cases Of All German War Criminals Being Reviewed

By RICHARD S. WEIL
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Jan. 18 — Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick, British high commissioner for Germany, announced that the U. S. and Britain are "reviewing" the cases of all imprisoned war criminals and also will consider those of the bigwigs convicted by the Nuernberg court.

Kirkpatrick told news correspondents the reviews are being made with a view to possible eventual pardons.

With regard to the main nazi war criminals now held at Spandau prison in the British sector, he said special attention is to be given former grand admiral Eric Raeder and admiral Karl Doenitz.

Raeder was sentenced to life imprisonment and Doenitz to 10 years. Their attorneys argued they were purely naval leaders with no interest in nazi politics.

Kirkpatrick emphasized that a four-power agreement embracing Soviet Russia would be required for any alteration of sentence but said he hoped the reviews would be "profitable". He added:

"Hatred and revenge are bad counselors."

Sympathetic To Idea

Kirkpatrick indicated he is sympathetic to the idea of pardons in all cases "with which we can reconcile our consciences."

He said the University of Kiel made a special plea in behalf of Raeder which will be brought to the high commissioner's attention within a few days.

Kirkpatrick said he is not opposed to the release of such men if a review shows such action is justified.

"Men should not be kept in prison merely for persecution," Kirkpatrick said.

Kirkpatrick criticized the "broad masses" of West Germans for what he termed their "lack of comprehension" of west European problems. He reproached them for "attacking every potential partner and friend".

He added:

"Playing east against west would be more unfortunate for the Germans than anyone else."

Doenitz received the lightest sentence of any of the former German officails convicted at Nuernberg.

The defense argued that he merely had carried out his duties as a soldier and officer and after the presumed suicide of Adolf Hitler had tried to lead Germany into an honorable surrender.

Federal-State surveys revealed that eggs in incubators indicate bookings for January delivery are relatively light compared with a year ago.

Chick production for the first 11 months of 1950 totaled 64,275,000 compared with 60,834,000 for the same period in 1949.

Cuzumbies are relatives of the honey bear and their habitat is Colombia, South America.

'GHOST TRAIN'

BOSTON—They called it "The Ghost Train." Put into operation in 1891 between Boston and New York by the old New York and New England Railroad, it consisted of all white cars, with white silk window curtains and gold plush seats. It covered the 200-mile run in five hours and 40 minutes, which is still good time.

Forecasts On Fruit Prices

Agricultural Dept. Gives Some Estimates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The Agriculture Department says the average prices growers receive for apples and pears in January and February will approach those of the first two months last year.

But while apple and pear prices are expected to continue strong, the department says prices for most citrus fruits will average lower, because of increased production.

The department says that although the 1950 commercial apple crop was about a tenth smaller than the large 1949 crop, a larger proportion was of winter varieties.

Economic abandonment of apples was less than last year, and harvesting continued into late fall. Cold-storage stocks of apples are considerably larger than stocks a year earlier.

The larger stocks of apples in storage will hold prices from rising a great deal.

Pears in storage are estimated at slightly larger than last winter. With demand strong for the smaller 1950 pear crop, grower prices were relatively high last fall. Only small price changes are expected to take place this winter.

As for citrus, the department says that growers prices for oranges and grapefruit this winter will tend to be sustained at the December levels as processing gets into full swing.

Further support to citrus prices will come from the government export-payment programs announced recently for oranges and grapefruit.

It does not seem likely, the department says, that prices will rise much this winter in view of the fact that the new orange crop is slightly larger than the last one and the grapefruit crop is a third larger.

The Agriculture Department expects the demand and use of feed grains and concentrates this year to be much heavier than in 1950.

This will be due to greater emphasis put on the raising of livestock for the mobilization effort.

But the department says that the nation's feed grain and concentrates supply is of record proportions.

PARTY SERVICE

WASHINGTON—(INS)—An enterprising Washington, D. C., couple has started a children's party service which is proving a boon to busy mothers. Paul Hockman, former Air Force lieutenant, and his wife, Dorothy, offer several package parties to fit any size or theme a child could want. The packages include trimmings, favors, table ware, games and prizes. The young host or hostess can choose among magic parties, cowboy parties, circus parties or any other theme.

Drive Slow—Children Move Fast!

Around Hollywood

By JAMES PADGITT

(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18.—The fan dance Ann Dvorak does in Allied Artists' "I Was An American Spy" is probably the only one on record with social significance—or, for that matter, the only based on history.

Ann portrays Claire Phillips, the plucky American woman whose guerilla activities during the Japanese occupation of Manila won her the Medal of Freedom from General Mark Clark.

After the fall of the city Miss Phillips returned to Manila as a cafe entertainer to ferret out military plans of the top Japanese brass — information that was passed on to General Douglas MacArthur.

Learned Fast

She learned that a flotilla of Japanese submarines was in Manila harbor about to embark on an important mission. She invited the sub commanders to visit her in the cafe and see her "authentic American fan dance".

She did not know the first thing about the fan dance, but she improvised enough and proved provocative enough that the Japanese delayed their sailing for 12 hours. As a result the foltilla was sought and destroyed by the U. S.

Ann was not too hep to the fan dance business either. She was told to "just get in there and wave them like Claire Phillips did."

Gets Big Hand

The "spy" company that crowded the sound stage that day gave Ann a big hand and said it was perfect.

Also in "I Was An American Spy" is Gene Evans, who has been hailed for his performance in "The Steel Helmet". As a result of the Korean war picture, Evans, who, only a few months ago was washing cars at three dollars a day, has enough film offers to keep him busy for the next two years.

No Love in Titles

"Love" may be a wonderful word in a moonlit garden and it may make sense on a tennis court, but it is a lemon when it shows up in a movie title.

Abner Greshler, co-producer with Fred Finklehoff of the New Jersey Lewis-Dean Martin comedy, "At War with the Army", claims he would not want to be caught dead with "love" in the title of one of his pictures.

"I don't know why it hurts a movie," he says, "but it helps business just about as little as anything you can do with a title. It is like hanging up a smallpox sign in the lobby."

There Are Exceptions

Greshler claims that most movie producers agree with him, but the word still crops up on theater marquees. MGM was the last studio with a "love" picture and it seems to be doing all right. It was "Two Weeks with Love".

And over at Universal-International Marta Toren is trying to talk her bosses into buying the the rights to the silent film sizzler, "Love", that starred Garbo and John Gilbert.

Women Have More Curves

British Women Have More Pulchritude Under Austerity

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—British women have more curves under the post-war austerity of today than they had under pre-war plenty.

Clothing and corset manufacturers, shopkeepers and scientists all agree that the female form in Britain today has pulchritude plus.

Larger and stronger corsets have been snapped up to play an aggressive role in battles of the bulges all over Britain.

Shops today sell twice as many "outsize" dresses as they did a few years ago. The stock-size, ready-made frocks need altering to fit the changing shapes of British women.

With women apparently helpless against the advance of the "Amazon look" scientists and clothing experts are massing tape measures to grapple with the problem of larger women.

A full-fledged "body measurement" committee under the chairmanship of Glasgow university's James Cunnison has begun a nationwide survey of feminine figures.

In London burly Captain Philip Kunick has trained a team of girls as "body measurers" and altogether the team will record the shape, size and weight of 10,000 British women between the ages of 18 and 70.

Some 37 measurements will be taken from each woman.

Clothing manufacturers will use these measurements to plan better-fitting, ready-made clothes in the right quantities.

Colorado imported 75,000,000 California honey bees to pollinate 1,000 acres of alfalfa.

Announce Plans For Tuberculin Testing Program

Lawrence County Tuberculosis society, will begin its annual tuberculin testing program, Monday, Jan. 22, at the Mahoning township school, in Hillsville, under the supervision of Mrs. Jane Cochran, executive secretary of the society, with the help of Miss Marie Douglas, school nurse of district five.

Approximately 4,500 students will be tested during the next three months in a program slanted to test the odd numbered grades to assure the children a tuberculin test every two years during their entire school term.

All students who react positively will be X-rayed at the office of the local society.

Districts one, two, three, and four, will be tested later, and will be in charge of registered nurses, Mrs. Bessie Sloan, Mrs. Eleanor Birt, Mrs. Lucille King, and Mrs. Isobel Craig.

Parents are urged to sign consent slips, as no child can be tested otherwise.

The meeting opened with the group singing "America."

Following the business session, the evening entertainment consisted of two selections on the accordion given by Joseph Koscinski, "Quicksilver" and "Lady of Spain," followed by two vocal selections by Bobby Kwiat, "I Don't See You in My Eyes Any More" and "Our Lady Fatima."

Visiting teachers for the evening were Mrs. Laura Sadler and Mrs. Neal Edie. The door prize was won by Mrs. Sadler. A project for February 23 is being planned by the organiation.

Refreshments were later served by the social committee, Mrs. Madelyn Collingwood, chairlandy.

Next regular meeting will be Tuesday, February 20, in the school, the social committee will be Mrs. Muriel Nygard, chairlady, and her aides, Mrs. Henry Kresowaty, Mrs. Clifton White, Mrs. Philip Ketzel, Mrs. Charles Olescyski and Mrs. Anthony Skufca.

Volunteer Workers Devote Many Hours To Seal Campaign

Over 125 volunteer workers for the 1950 tuberculosis seal sale campaign who gave many hours of their time, made possible the preparing of more than 25,000 seal sale letters, for mailing during the campaign, it was announced Thursday by Mrs. Jane M. Cochran, Executive Secretary of the Lawrence County Tuberculosis Society.

Mrs. Jessie M. Stenger, who devoted six weeks, or 150 hours of her time to the society, lead all others in volunteer work.

Mrs. Stenger was elected a member of the board of directors at the 1950 annual meeting, and it was then that the board expressed their appreciation for the generous assistance given by Mrs. Stenger.

Letters of thanks are being sent to all those workers who gave so willingly of their time to the campaign.

Defense Rests In Ingenito Trial In Surprise Move

WOODBURY, N. J. Jan. 18—(INS)—The defense rested today in a surprise move at the trial of Ernest Ingenito, 26-year-old appliance salesman accused of the mass murders of five in-laws.

Court-appointed defense attorney Frank Sahl rested his case without calling on four psychiatrists who had been expected to bolster the defense contention that Ingenito was temporarily insane at the time of the Piney Hollow, N. J., massacres last November 17.

Sahl is expected to call the quartet of mental experts in rebuttal after County Prosecutor Milton E. Hannold calls on two psychiatrists in his rebuttal session.

Ingenito took the stand again today for the third straight day and repeated his account that he "blacked out" on the night that five of his in-laws were slain and his wife, Theresa, 23, and three other relatives were wounded.

Pitching, as everybody seems to know, is the most important factor in a team's success, and assuming the Giant's big three will have reasonable good seasons they would be getting close to the clincher if they could come up with a southpaw to help out the trio of right-handers.

NEW FIRE TRUCK IN SERVICE AT NEW WILMINGTON

New Wilmington Volunteer Fire department's new truck, together with some members of the department, in front of the fire house in the college town. The truck arrived in the borough last week after a wait of several months, due to production difficulties. The old truck will be kept by the department for additional fire protection.

Latest Casualty List From Korea

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The defense department reported today that announced American casualties in Korea through last Friday totaled 45,137, an increase of 2,424 over the previous week.

This was one of the largest weekly increases announced since the beginning of the Korean war. The new total include 7,303 dead, 6,509 killed in action, 772 fatally wounded and 22 known to have died in Communist prisons.

In addition, the announcement listed 29,179 other wounded and 8,659 missing.

Actual casualties are higher, because the official lists are not made up until after relatives have been notified.

By services, the new totals list 36,959 casualties for the army, 7,332 for the Marine Corps, 496 for the Navy and 353 for the Air Force.

Of the total dead, the Army has suffered 5,786, the Marine Corps 1,321, the Air Force 32 and the Navy 64.

Horseback Trip To West Coast

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (INS) — A boyhood dream of riding horseback from Tennessee to the west coast may come true for two young men in Memphis.

Jim Craig, 20, and and Bill Paul, 24, are planning the 1,800-mile trip. Since they were kids, the two have planned to go to California and the pacific coast by horseback.

Now they are looking for some of what makes dreams come true. They need someone to finance the trip.

Craig said:

"I've lived all my life on a farm, and I've had the idea in my mind since I was 14. Bill wants to make the trip with me.

"We thought someone might like to finance the trip as an advertising venture."

Craig and Paul plan to go with two horses and a pack horse, camping out every night on the way. They are experienced campers.

They haven't laid out a specific route yet, but they plan to sell the horses in Los Angeles, and return to Memphis.

Craig served in San Francisco as an Army medical technician is a senior rodman with the Tennessee Engineering Department. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Craig of Lucy, Tenn.

Bill Paul studies refrigeration in the National Vocational school. He served in the Navy from 1944 to 1946.

They say they have been told they will never make it. But Bill Paul says: "We've got to show them we can!"

Citizens Will Visit Boardman

A bus will be chartered on Wednesday, January 24, to take any Parent-Teacher association members or any interested local resident to visit the new elementary school at Boardman, Ohio. The group is to assemble at the Lincoln-Garfield school at 7 p. m. to make the trip.

"Open house" will be held at the school to give people an opportunity to view the modern teaching facilities at the school which has been recently completed.

Welterweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson, back from an all-victorious tour of Europe, blames the Communists for spreading stories abroad about racial discrimination in the United States.

FARM COSTS

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(INS)—One thousand Michigan farmers worked with Michigan State College and county agricultural agents on an account-keeping project to reveal the cost of operating a farm in Michigan. The project discovered that total farm investment increased an average of $1,300 every year since the end of World War II. They found that oper.ting expenses, including a charge for the operator's labor, more than tripled since the pre-war period of 1935-49. These expenses are now twice what entire gross farm incomes were in those years.

HEAT LIKES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(INS)—People from the midwest and the smaller cities appear to require less heat for comfort than eastern-ers. At least that's the conclusion to be drawn from a two-year study of temperatures likes and dislikes of guests at the Saxony Hotel. The study, conducted by Minneapolis-Honeywell engineers, revealed that visitors from mid-western states were inclined to keep thermostats for the air conditioning system below the 74-degree average for all guests.

In The Open

Between snows the weather-maker amused himself by sending a warm rain across the countryside. Aided by a mild day or two when the sun got in a few good licks, this combination almost cleared the hills of their white coverlid, revealing the naked frame of hard brown Winter. The ice coating on the big ponds turned to spongy slush, and one foolhardy dandelion upheld the gold standard on our front lawn.

When the weekend got around to the point where I could quit the desk and head for the thickets the sun had gone into hiding and a moist overcast closed in overhead. I parked the car on a hillside near the woods and struck out along a haulage roadway. Hardly had I journeyed fifty paces when I broke up a cardinal reunion. The flaming red-birds and their less vivid consorts had found good foraging in an open area where the pokeberry crop had been heavy.

While I watched the grosbeaks hustling out ahead like streaks of living fire a bigger bird lumbered off to a safe perch in a scraggly elm. He bobbed around in characteristic fashion and the glass brought him in sharp and clear as a belated flicker who has decided to stay around even though Winter makes cold music down the frosty forest aisles.

I came to an abandoned quarry where a three-sided building has been partially filled with hay of ancient parentage. This has settled into a natural thatch roofing and various interesting openings indicated where fox or skunk or perhaps just Mr. Groundhog had set up housekeeping in the snug apartment. The green rosettes of poison hemlock showed up here and there about this quarry.

After crossing a fine fence I found myself climbing a long slope through second growth timber. The ground was carpeted solidly by the green matting of ground ivy. The wild grape has found this hillside to its liking, and has set up a whole series of festooned roadblocks, designed to trip up the trespasser and to provide food and cover for the permanent residents.

There are supposed to be some deer in this woodland. I worked through considerable acreage of good cover without one glimpse of that white signal flag. One hale and hearty ruffed grouse, evidently a planted bird, sat tight until I had nearly stepped on him, and then thundered out ahead, scaring me out of at least one year's growth. It's always a thrill to encounter one of these great birds in our heavily-hunted timerland.

I walked out to a more open edging and was searching for cocoons on the wild cherry saplings when I came across the shellacked egg mass of the praying mantis glued to a cockspur thorn twig. This I pocketed and brought along home to tie onto one of our lilac bushes. Perhaps if we're luck we'll have a platoon of hungry mantids helping decimate the insect invader in next Summer's garden rows.

I walked out across the brow of the hill, beneath the wires of a high power line, and down over the edge until I came to the remains of a roadway leading to an ill-fated drilling effort which had resulted in a dry hole. The blackberry tangles which normally choke passage lay flat to the ground, evidence of the weight of the recent record snowfall which had crushed them beneath its icy heel. This snow had also broken off many of the lower branches of the small wildcherry saplings.

Finally I found myself clear at the bottom of the valley beneath this tangled hillside, checking stray snow patches for deer tracks, and following a surging brook back through the trees. The brooks are never so beautiful, so limpid and so talkative, as in the Winter months. This patricular valley has framed its sparkling courier in evergreen chickweed, and lined its banks with small graceful willows.

The moist air resolved itself into a pattern of tiny raindrops fleeing out of the west. I turned back beneath a heavy sky, upheld by the naked pillars of the brooding trees. The too-early dusk of January settled softly across the silent hills as my heavy boots traced out the return journey to the waiting car and the warm, lighted windows of home.

Honor Memory Of News Photographer Killed In Far East

TOKYO, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Charles D. Rosecrans, Jr., International News photographer killed in an airplane crash in Japan last fall, was honored Wednesday in a Tokyo ceremony in which Mrs. Douglas MacArthur took a leading part.

Rosecrans was posthumously awarded a medallion and a $1,000 check by the magazine, U. S. Camera—its "achievement award".

Mrs. MacArthur presented the check and medallion to Howard Handleman, far eastern director of International News Service, in a brief ceremony at the Tokyo Press club.

The wife of the United Nations commander said she was glad to be able to do honor to the memory of "Rosie" as the photographer was called, whom she said she knew and admired.

The check and medallion will be sent to Rosecrans' widow who is now living in Honolulu.

Roscrans was killed last September when a plane in which he was returning to the Korean war front crashed shortly after taking off from its Japanese base. Also killed in the crash were International News Service war correspondent Frank Emery and INS-Telenews cameraman Ken Inouye.

The first president of the United States not born a British subject was Martin van Buren.

City Streets Will Need Repair This Year

As snow leaves city thoroughfares the effects of the recent heavy snowfalls and traffic are very noticeable and indications are that many blacktopped, and other paved streets will need repair this spring, or summer.

In some thoroughfares the blacktop has been worn down to the brick and in some others holes have appeared.

NIL REVENUE

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (INS) — Ohio's big snow did more than cut into municipal funds for a mopping up job. After the worst was past the city fathers all over the state were figuring out how much was lost in parking meter revenues. For about a week this source of income was practically nil. The result has caused some drastic changes in budget.

Some Concern Over Hay And Pasture Seeds For 1952 Crops

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(INS)—Agriculture officials are concerned about the supply of hay and pastures seeds for planting 1952 crops.

Officials say that while supplies of grass and legume seeds for planting this year are adequate, some concern is already being felt about supplies for planting in 1952.

Because of the current emergency, they say less attention is likely to be paid to the harvesting of these seeds this year than last when interest in grass and forage crops was high.

Farmers' attention this year and next is likely to be focused on the production of food and feed crops.

The emphasis on food and feed crops, officials say will mean decreased production and consumption of grass and legume seeds in 1951 and 1952.

But they warn that the need for forage is expected to be even greater in the years ahead.

And the Agriculture Department urges producers of grass and legume seeds to "do everything possible to maintain their capacity" to produce hay and pastures seeds in the coming years.

One official says that the danger lying in wait for hay and pasture production is just one of many of the dislocations of production that the nations farmers face in their rush to gear for all-out war-time production.

Western Hemisphere Last Line Of Defense

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Harry F. Guggenheim, former ambassador to Cuba, warned today that the Western Hemisphere, as "our last line of defense," is being "woefully neglected" while United States foreign policy concentrates on Europe and Asia.

Guggenheim, long a student of Latin American affairs, said in an interview:

"Europe still may be our first line of defense, but this hemisphere is our last line of defense, and it must be made impregnable.

"That is not a policy of isolation," he added firmly. It is a policy of prudence."

Guggenheim, industrialist, pioneer in aeronautics and rocket development and a Naval aviator in World Wars I and II, spoke from his experience as the government's erpresentative on many diplomatic, economic and aeronautical missions.

A progressive Republican, Guggenheim was strongly critical of U. S. foreign policy as a whole, asserting that it was "vague, confusing and headed in three directions at the same time."

JESUS MEETS GROWING HOSTILITY

CHURCH AUTHORITIES PLOT TO KILL HIM

Scripture—Mark 1:40-3:12

Jesus heals the man with the palsy.

"And when Jesus heard it, He saith unto them, They that are whole have no need of a physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners." — Mark 2:17.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

More of Christ's activities are related in today's lesson, activities that healed and blest the common people, but which roused the ire of the church authorities.

The first miracle in our lesson is the healing of a leper. The man came to Jesus and, kneeling at His feet, besaought the Lord to make him clean. You remember that all lepers had to warn others to keep away from them, for fear of contagion by crying, "Unclean! Unclean!"

Touched by the man's faith, Jesus reached out His hand and touched him, and straightway he was cleansed and whole. Jesus told him to tell no one, but to go to the priest and "offer for thy cleansing the things which Moses commanded," in other words, obey the Jewish law.

However, the man did not obey the Master, but told everyone he met of the miracle. We can suppose this man was so overcome with joy that he simply could not refrain from telling everyone, in spite of Jesus' command.

Jesus had been preaching and healing in the various towns of Galilee, but when He returned to Capernaum, the house in which He was staying was besieged with people who wanted to see Him, and witness miracles.

The multitude was such that there was no room to receive them. Jesus preached to them.

Inside the house a dramatic scene took place. A hopelessly paralyzed man was brought by his friends to be healed of Jesus. He and his friends must have had great faith to move them to bring him.

Finding that they could not enter the house by the door because of the milling crowds, they climbed up on the flat roof of the house, which was not high, and cutting away a section of it, let the man down into the room.

Jesus' first words were not a healing of the body, but of the soul. He said, "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee."

Some scribes who were present objected to this. In their hearts they reasoned that no one but God could forgive sins. They did not know that they were in the presence of One who could forgive sins, even as His Heavenly Father.

Jesus read their minds, and asked them why they reasoned thus. "But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (He saith to the sick of the palsy), I say unto thee, Arise, take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house."

The man immediately rose, took his bed and went forth, to the amazement of the crowd, who said, "We never say it on this fashion."

Going to the sea again, Jesus passed a publican, or taxgatherer, seated at his place of business, He was an outcast from his people because he collected taxes for the master—Rome—and incidentally filled his own pockets with his collections over and above what he sent to their conquerors.

Jesus called to him to follow Him, and Levi left his post and followed Him.

Jesus ate with "publicans and sinners" because they needed Him to save them. When rebuked for that He said, "They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

He was also accused of breaking the Sabbath because, in passing through a wheat field on that day He allowed His disciples to pluck kernels to eat. "The Sabbath was made for man," He said; "not man for the Sabbath."

Even more resprehensible, according to the scribes and Pharisees, was Christ's healing of a man's withered hand in the synagogue on the Sabbath day. That act outraged them so much that they held a counsel to see how they might trap and destroy him.

Oh, for such a presence to bring us all to a sense of our sins, to save us, and make us walk in uprightness, so the whole world might live henceforth in righteousness and peace!

Today's Fashion Flash

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Women will wear bow-ties to match their fellas' four-in-hand this spring.

Brooke Cadwallader, Czar of scarfwear, today introduced slender (two-inch wide) ladies' ties in silk prints to match spruce male ties. Each was priced a t$5.

The novelty ties were only one phase of Cadwallader's fashion prediction for spring scarfwear . . .

Also in the high-style neckwear line were silk print "jabot" scarves—designed with a two-inch band to circle the throat, ending in four-inch-square squares that looped into ascot tabs at side or center front of the neckline.

Other Cadwallader novelties included square silk and silk chiffon scarfs printed to simulate old French paintings, playing cards, flowers and fairy fables.

Most unusual of all the scarf prints was the "shorthand" model—stenciled with copies, in shorthand, of speeches by famous politicians of the 20th century.

Parts of the Mediterranean barely exceed 30 fathom (about 780 feet) in depth.

Sweeping Changes In Steel Priorities Are Being Planned

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The magazine Iron Age said today that sweeping changes in steel priorities will result from new rules and regulations now being worked by government and industry representatives.

The publication said that defense priority orders will be lifted out of the strict military category and give nwider application. In addition it predicted that big increases in the tonnage allocated to defense and essential civilian programs will be felt soon.

According to Iron Age, broadened defense order applications will include such items as construction of new plants, steel mill expansion, and construction of facilities to safeguard public health and safety.

One of the week's highlights has been a skyrocketing of scrap prices as some steelmakers rushed into the market to capture tonnage ahead of impending price controls. This resulted in a jump of as much as $6.75 per gross ton at Buffalo and $5.00 per gross ton at Philadelphia. The Iron Age steel scrap composite price advanced $1.66 per gross ton to $46.75 per gross ton.

Vast Defense Housing Plan Is Given Mixed Reception

By CHARLES B. SEIB
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The White House plan for a vast new defense housing program got a mixed reception from Senate banking committee members.

Acting committee chairman Sparkman (D) Ala., told newsmen he thought the three-billion-dollar program was "very good" and "just about as foolproof as it can be."

But Sen. Ives (R) N. Y., a committee member, said he was dissatisfied with the administration's justification of the proposal, given by housing administrator Raymond Foley, and that "we've got to have a great deal more information before we approve a mammoth program like this one."

Another committee member, Sen. Schoeppel (R) Kans., said that he thought the program would be acceptable if Foley made every use of private builders before resorting to government construction.

Some Housing Needed

All three Senators agreed that some defense housing program is necessary if vital industries are to get the workers they need.

The administration's program would boost by three billion dollars the amout of government- insured housing mortgages. Most of these mortgages would be used to finance rental housing for defense workers.

In addition, the program provides for 125 million dollars worth of direct government construction of homes in areas where private financing is not available as well as for community facilities, such as sewer and water systems, streets, schools and hospitals.

Sparkman, replying to a complaint by Sen. Robertson (D) Va., that the program would add to the inflation, commented:

"We are faced with the choice between leaving off an absolute necessity or having it and some inflation too. I regard housing as much of a necessity as bread, clothing or transportation. The new South Carolina bomb plant is probably inflationary, too, but we are not going to refuse to build it for that reason."

Since 1875 the federal government has had the right to take land in a state for federal purposes.

Knife-Wielding Robber Sought In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—(INS)—A knife-wielding robber on Wednesday invaded a central Philadelphia hosiery shop, bound two women clerks and fled amidst a lunchtime rush crowd with $125 in loot.

The clerks, Mrs. Mildred Chambers, 26, and Mrs. Helen Carroll, 22, ran screaming from the store, their hands bound with adhesive tape, to spread the alarm.

Mrs. Chambers was alone behind the counter of the Golden Dawn Hosiery shop when the robber entered. She said he thrust a pen-knife against her and said:

"I'll kill you if you don't give me money." Mrs. Chambers said he forced her to open the cash register, from which he took $125 in bills.

Mrs. Carroll, who had been in a balcony washroom, walked downstairs in the middle of the holdup. She and Mrs. Chambers were forced to lie on the floor after the robber tied them with tape.

Expect Two Million Workers To Shift To Defense Jobs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—An administration official told congress today that two million U. S. workers are expected to shift from civilian to defense production in the next six months.

Assistant Federal Security Administrator John L. Thurston made the statement while testifying in support of the three billion dollar defense housing bill before the senate banking committee.

Thurston said that the great majority of the workers going into the defense field probably would remain in the communities in which they now live. He added, however, that there would be enough moving around the country to warrant a defense housing program.

He said the housing bill, which gives government insured mortgage incentives to encourage defense housing and permits some direct government building, is needed to make sure that production is not delayed by housing shortages.

Seeks $10,000 From Victor Mature For Bite By Actor's Dog

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Postman Joseph Farkas, 35, sought $10,000 from Victor Mature for injuries he claims he suffered when he was bitten by a dog owned by the film star.

Farkas' damage suit charged the incident occurred last November 27 and that he suffered spinal injuries and lacerations.

Mystery Man To Be Returned To Austria Second Time

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS)—A mystery man the United States "just doesn't want" awaited today deportation to his native Austria for the second time in seven years.

The man, identified as Dr. Herman S. Ebren, arrived at New York aboard the Isthmian line's SS Seafarer and was immediately placed under immigration guard.

It was stated Dr. Ebren boarded the ship at Singapore with Bangkok, Siam, as his destination. At Bangkok authorities wouldn't let him land on the ground his passport was not satisfactory.

When the Seafarer reached Boston from Siam on Monday Dr. Ebren again was ordered kept aboard ship. Newsmen were not permitted to talk with him.

Immigration authorities refuse to discuss details of the case. A spokesman said only that Dr. Ebren was denied U. S. citizenship and deported seven years ago "because of fraud in his citizenship application". The same spokesman said there was no question of subversion or espionage involved in the case, but commented: "we just don't want him".

College Drive Leaders Meet

Plan For Extension Of Westminster Campaign

Campaign leaders from 20 Pennsylvania and Ohio districts met in New Wilmington Wednesday night for an organizational meeting in preparation for the extension of Westminster college's campaign for $1,245,000 into outlying communities.

The college has already raised $460,000 toward its goal. The district campaigns will begin late this month and extend into March with mopping up activities scheduled until the end of the current school year.

Series Of Meetings

During the district campaigns, churches in Westminster's synodical constituency will be asked to participate in the fund raising drive. A series of 18 dinners among 20 presbyteries are scheduled during the next three months. The first of the presbyterial dinners were held earlier this week in Indiana and Newville. Another will be held tonight in the United Presbyterian church, Ardara.

At last night's district campaign meeting in New Wilmington Campaign Director Joseph Hopkins outlined the scope of the district campaigns and set February dates for campaigns to get underway in Butler, Cleveland, Sharon, Grove City, Pittsburgh and Westmoreland county.

Others who outlined plans for the campaign included Dr. Will W. Orr, college president; Dr. James M. Ferguson, president of the college board of trustees; Jack Lewis of Sharon, general chairman of the campaign; Irving Mansell of New Wilmington, president of the college alumni association; Paul Gamble, executive secretary of the alumni association; Clyde Armstrong of Pittsburgh, member of the board of trustees, and Mike Wherry, attorney, Grove City.

Change Being Made In Renumeration

It developed today that Tuesday council held a private meeting at which the pay of the city's hourly workers was discussed.

One of the developments of the informal session is that henceforth no hourly worker will be paid for time which he does not actually work—excepting during certain holidays and the vacation period.

It is alleged that for years some hourly employes have reecived a full day's pay for a half day's work on Saturday.

Council plans to act on a proposed ordinance concerning the question of work and pay for the same.

Two Are Killed In Truck Collision Near Bellefonte

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Jan. 18.—(INS)—Centre County Deputy Coroner John Weber today scheduled an inquest January 22 into the deaths of a state highway inspector and another man who were killed in a two truck collision near Bellefonte.

State police identified the victims as Joseph W. Lehman, 19, the truck driver, and James P. Curtin, 28, the state employe. Both men lived in Bellefonte.

They died when their truck crashed head-on into another truck late yesterday near Bellefonte before bursting into flames.

Weber said both men probably were dead of other injuries before they were charred by the flames.

State police said Lehman's truck, a concrete mixer, pulled out of a traffic line to pass a truck and collided with a third.

Curtin was a passenger in the mixer which was en route to Bellefonte hospital.

He was a World War II veteran and a brother of Col. George Curtin, commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard's 200th Field Artillery battalion which is slated to be inducted into federal service Saturday. Colonel Curtin cancelled plans to fly today to Camp Campbell, Ky., to arrange for the arrival of his unit.

Sewers And Streets To Need Attention

When a proposed city bond sale ordinance is submitted and later adopted, it is anticipated that a considerable portion of the receipts from the sale will be applied to sewers because recently the state took up with the city the problem of the open water course which flows through Canyon street, which allegedly contains sewage.

It is also reported that sewage is entering the Shenango river via the Euclid avenue storm sewer, and at times when a heavy deluge occurs sewage enters the Neshannock creek at Rural avenue.

The streets were also damaged considerably by the heavy snowfalls and some of them will have to be repaired, hence it is believed council when they do pass the proposed bond issue will make some provision for the sewers and streets.

For the past nine years Mr. Bowen has been in complete charge of the New Castle G. C. Murphy Company. District Manager A. F. Newroth presented Mr. Bowen with gifts from the company and from his associate managers of the district surrounding the New Castle store location.

C. M. Shumate, assistant manager of the store presented Mr. Bowen with a gift from the employes of the local company.

As a 25-year veteran of the company Mr. Bowen will receive a fine watch, for his excellent service, when the Veteran club meets in Pittsburgh May 14. He is now eligible for the five weeks of vacation granted to employes with 25 years of service.

Wild Ducks Winter At Pymatuning Lake

MEADVILLE, Jan. 18.—All geese and ducks don't migrate to southern waters for the winter.

Crawford County Game Protector Ray Sickles says about 2,000 Canada geese, one snow goose and some 3,000 wild ducks are wintering at nearby Pymatuning Refuge.

In recent weeks, State Game Commission employes have been feeding these birds.

Even if the so-called old-fashioned winter continues, requiring thousands of bushels of grain for feed, the Pymatuning refuge hospitality will continue.

Winds have been known to reach a world-record force of 231 miles an hour around Mt. Washington, N. H., according to the National Geographic society.

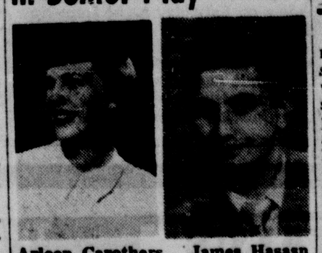
To Portray Roles In Senior Play



Arleen Carothers James Hasasn

Arleen Carothers and James Hassan are part of the dozen in the senior class play, "Cheaper by the Dozen". As Ernestine and Frank they are very important in the cast as the narrators. Their reminiscences as adults under spotlight before the curtain provide the unifying narraitves of which the acts of the play are well chosen sequences from the family life of the home where children were facetiously said to come "cheaper by the dozen".

In the big Gilbreth family Ernestine is a sort of lieutenant to her older sister Ann's determined but somewhat ineffective revolt against the father's scientific family management. Frank is the agreeable oldest son of the family and takes considerable delight in being his father's lieutenant and keeping the girls in their place.

Arleen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Carothers of North Ray street.

James is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ahmed Hassan of Hamilton avenue.

HARRISBURG—Somerset county ranks first in the production and value of oats, according to the State Department of Agriculture. In 1949 production was 1,094,230 bushels, valued at $798,790. York was second, followed in order by Crawford, Mercer, Butler, Tioga, Lycoming, Bradford, Chester, and Westmoreland.

Air Force To Be Increased

Will Have 95 Or 100 Air Groups In 1952 Fiscal Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The air force disclosed that it plans to increase its strength to 95 or 100 air groups during the 1952 fiscal year beginning July 1.

Lt. Gen. Idwal Edwards, air force deputy chief of staff, told a house armed services subcommittee that this will involve increasing the air force personnel to between 900,000 and one million men.

The air force now has a strength of about 750,000 men.

Meanwhile the air force said that it has stopped recruiting until Feb. 1 because of overcrowded conditions at its recruit training center at Lackland base, San Antonio, Tex.

An air force spokesman said that the suspension on enlistments is definitely temporary, and that he does not expect it to be extended beyond Feb. 1.

To Complete Base

He said that a recruit training station at Sampson base, Geneva, N. Y., will be completed in mid-February and will be capable of handling another 1,000 recruits per day.

The new air force represents a great increase in the existing strength of the air force. The air force had previously announced it was increasing the number of its groups from 48 to 68.

In his annual budget message submitted to congress last Monday, President Truman added that the plan was to boost the number to 84 and then to add additional wings later.

The exact size of the air force now is regarded as a military secret but general reports have it between 58 and 65 groups.

The number of planes in an air group varies. President Truman's Finletter commission estimated several years ago that 70 groups would contain about 20,500 planes.

In spite of bad roads, inclement weather and conflicting engagements, about 40 gathered at the grange hall on Monday evening, complimenting Mr. and Mrs. George Hume, a recent bride and groom. After a social hour with cards as a diversion and the serving of dainty refreshments the honored guests were presented with a gift by the grange.

A.E.C. OFFICIAL QUITS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The atomic energy commission announced the resignation of Deputy General Manager Carleton Shugg, effective January 31.

Shugg, who has served with the AEC since 1947, will become assistant general manager of the Groton (Conn.) plant of the Electric Boat Co.

He explained that he believed his wartime Naval service in submarine construction enables him to make a contribution to national emergency production in the field of shipbuilding.

AWARDED CONTRACT

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Lewis Foundry & Machine Division of Blaw-Knox company revealed it has been awarded a contract to produce anti-aircraft mounts for the United States Navy.

The work will be performed at Groveton, Pa., where the Lewis Division is now installing a production line for this purpose.

The firm said the contract is "of considerable size," but not reveal the number or types of gun mounts to be produced. During World War II, Blaw-Knox was the producer of the Bofors Naval anti-aircraft gun mounts.

Hershey Urges Induction Of 18-Year-Olds

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Draft Director Hershey urged Congress today to extend the selective service law indefinitely and provide for induction of 18-year-olds.

Hershey supported the administration's new draft bill before the Senate preparedness subcommittee but went further and questioned whether a proposed 27-month period of service is long enough.

He asked that enlistments of all men of draft age—from 18 through 26 under the bill—be stopped.

The selective service director also said that responsibility for initial procurement of all enlisted male personnel under 26 should be placed directly under his office.

Gratitude Shown By Truckers To Folks Of Irwin Last Night

IRWIN, Pa., Jan. 18.—(INS)—Big-hearted truckers showed their gratitude today to the good folk of Irwin who sheltered them during the big November snow storm.

The truckers last night presented Irwin with a check for $2,100 collected from approximately 1,000 drivers and trucking firms.

Speakers at the presentation ceremonies in Irwin last night lauded residents for their "unselfishness" and "hospitality" in opening their homes to the stranded truck drivers, as well as between 5,000 and 6,000 stalled motorists.

The funds will go to the Irwin library.

The swell shark, when in danger, will inflate its stomach until its thickness is equal to a third of its length and float belly up until the danger is past.

Basketball World Rocked By Sensational "Fix" Scandal

College Players, Three Gamblers Are Involved In Third Big Expose

By CHARLES EINSTEIN
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Police investigation of a shocking new basketball "fix" scandal spread beyond New York today in a drive to uncover names of others allegedly implicated with two scared skinny players and three pudgy-cheeked gamblers.

Awaiting hearing Jan. 24 on charges of throwing games the way they so expertly threw a basketball were Henry Poppe and Jack Byrnes, co-captains of last year's Manhattan college quintet.

Admit Taking Money

They were charged specifically with "dumping" games last season against Siena, Bradley and Santa Clara. But police said they also admitted taking money for winning games in accordance with gamblers' "point lines", netting $5,000 apiece in bribes during the season.

Also under arrest today were Cornelius Kelleher and Benjamin and Irving Schwartzberg, the latter two denied bail in magistrate's court because of criminal records. The three were identified as members of a gambling ring.

Negro Center Approached

But the investigation, touched off when Junius Kellogg, six-foot-eight Negro center on this year's Manhattan team, reported he had been offered $1,000 to throw Tuesday night's game with DePaul, was spreading further.

Police quoted Poppe, who made the bribe offer, as saying to Kellogg there were other players "in and out of New York" who had accepted bribes.

Assistant district attorney Edward Breslin of the Bronx said no other Manhattan players are involved in the investigation. But he added that the probe is being spread, and that "one player in particular" is under surveillance.

Manhattan was a ten-point underdog shortly before game time against DePaul. Had the "fix" gone through, the Jaspers would have lost by more than ten points. As it was, they startled the basketball world by tripping DePaul 62 to 59.

Third Big Scandal

The third college cage scandal to hit New York in the past five years found the five arrested men charged with bribery, which carries a sentence of up to five years, and conspiracy, which carries a three-year jail term.

It also brought forth a shocked reaction from sports people everywhere, and heightened rumors that Ned Irish, the impressario who brought basketball to Madison Square Garden in 1935, might ban the sport from his arena.

Irish would not comment on this report, but from other points the aghast quotes came fast and furious.

From the Rev. Fr. Joseph C. Phoenix, C. M., chairman of De Paul's athletic board, came this statement:

"We always want our athletes at DePaul to play to win, but because of the reported gambling conditions, we are happy we lost."

Demands Floor Czar

In Lawrence, Kan., Kansas basketball coach Phog Allen, long one of the game's most outspoken figures, demanded a national czar for the game.

Secretary Kenneth Wilson of the National Collegiate Athletic Association said in Chicago the NCAA owes "its grateful thanks" to player Kellogg for disclosing the attempted fix.

Kellogg was cast in a heros' role on the Manhattan campus today. He had reported Poppe's bribe offer to his coach, Ken Norton, who alerted police. On the latter's instructions, Kellogg arranged a meeting with Poppe and "agreed" to go along with the fix. Police trailed Poppe from the Garden Tuesday night and the arrests followed, with Poppe making what police called a "complete confession".

THE "FIX" IS FIXED—Standing at the desk in police court here after arrest on charges of "fixing" Manhattan college basketball games are (left to right) Henry Poppe and Jack Byrnes, both former Manhattan basketball stars, and alleged gamblers Cornelius Kellerher, Irving Schwartzberg, and Benjamin Schwartzberg. The five were taken into custody after a member of the current Manhattan basketball team reported he had been offered a bribe to "throw" a game against DePaul University. Inserted is Junius Kellogg who refused a $1,000 bribe to throw the game.

Goliat-Caballero Signed By Phils

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18 — (INS) — The Phillies added two more whiz-kids to the fold for the 1951 season today with the receipt of signed contracts from second baseman Mike Goliat and reserve infielder Ralph Caballero.

Manager Eddie Sawyer, maintains his faith that Goliat, who batted .234 last year, will develop into a .300 hitter this season. Goliat ranked sixth in fielding among second sackers in more than 100 games. Caballero, appeared in only 46 games last year.

Athletics Pin High Trade Value On Top First Sacker

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18 — (INS)—General Manager Arthur Ehlers of the Philadelphia Athletics tacked a big "if" today on any deal which would send Ferris Fain to the Detroit Tigers or any other club.

So far as the Tigers, in particular, are concerned, Ehlers declared:

"We wouldn't consider giving up Fain without getting an established ball player in return.

"We were willing to deal for any one of Detroit's three outfielders—Johnny Groth, Vic Wertz, or Hoot Evers—but the Tigers turned it down. I wouldn't even consider Pat Mullin."

Drew $100,000 Offer

Fain, one of the top first basemen in the American League, reportedly drew a $100,000 offer plus two Minor League players from the Tigers during the December baseball meetings in Florida.

Ehlers took occasion to criticise Tigers' Manager Red Rolfe and "other responsible people" in Detroit for "trying to make themselves look good" in mentioning Fain in trade talk.

Ed Mikan Signed By Warrior Five

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18—(INS)—Ed Mikan, 25-year-old, six-foot-ten "baby brother" of George Mikan, the Minneapolis basketball great, has been signed by the Philadelphia Warriors and will be ready for duty tonight against the Indianapolis Olympians.

Ed, two inches shorter than his brother, was co-captain at DePaul in 1947-48, and then played pro ball with Chicago, Rochester and Washington.

Bessemer Host To Wampum Friday In Section 23 First Place Battle

Wampum travels to Bessemer Friday night in the feature attraction of a good Section 23 card. In other games Shenango is at New Wilmington and East Brook at Mt. Jackson.

The game at Bessemer pits the leagues two top teams—both having records of four wins and no losses in section play.

Wampum, under coach Butler Hennon, has swept aside Shenango, Union, East Brook and Mt. Jackson. The first three wins were easy, but the Indians were forced to come from behind to nip Mt. Jackson 58-57 Tuesday night.

Bessemer, under coach Bill Ciccone, has defeated East Brook, New Wilmington, Shenango and Union. The Cementers have been the Cinderella team of Section 23 this season. No one gave them much of a chance as the section race got under way, but they have proved tough when the chips were down as they racked up wins in their first four league encounters.

Everybody Scores

Both teams rely upon all members of the team to help with the scoring and cannot be stopped by bottling up any one player. Wampum has been the offensive powerhouse in the league to date, averaging 75 points per game. It has given up an average of 46 points per game.

Bessemer on the other hand has been the league's number one defensive team, holding opposition to an average of only 36.5 points. The Cementers have scored an average of 42.5 points per game.

Though the Bessemer-Wampum game holds the spotlight in section competition, the other two games are expected to be close contest. Shenango and New Wilmington should put on a good battle at the New Wilmington community hall, while East Brook and Mt. Jackson are a toss-up on the Mounties' floor.

Three Games Friday In Junior Section

Three important games are scheduled for Friday afternoon in Section 16, Junior WPIAL. Both George Washington and Benjamin Franklin will be out of town to meet tough foes, while Mahoning and Union clash at Mahoning.

Franklin travels to Farrell to meet the section leaders, while Washington takes a trip to Butler. Wins for both Franklin and Washington would throw the leagues into a four way first place tie.

Mahoning and Union will battle for undisputed possession of last place in the league.

Malaria is listed as the number one disease most harmful to mankind.

Red Wings Top Blackhawks, 4-2

(By International News Service)

Gordie Howe's three goals paced the Detroit Red Wings to a 4 to 2 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks last night and increased the wings' first place lead to five full games.

Howe scored in each of the periods to accomplish his hat trick—the third of the National Hockey League season. Gaye Stewart notched the other Detroit goal.

Al Dewsbury and Adam Brown scored for the last-place Chicagoans, who haven't won in their last 15 games.

At New York, the Boston Bruins fought the New York Rangers to a 3 to 3 tie and retained their one-point hold on fourth place over the blueshirts.

LOCAL C.I.O. TO PLAY

The Local C.I.O. 3125 Girls Basketball Team of the Shenango Pottery will play the Zach Jewelry of Warren, Ohio, on Sunday, at the K. P. hall at 2:30 o'clock. This game was originally scheduled for last Sunday but was canceled at the last moment, it was announced by business manager, Dick Clark.

Hergesheimer Leads Scorers

(By International News Service)

Cleveland's young Walt Hergesheimer, a candidate for American Hockey League's "Rookie of the Year" honors, now leads the circuit in goals scored with 28.

Hergesheimer and teammate Fred Thurier gave the Barons a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Hornets last night and shoved Cleveland to an eight game lead in the western division.

Buffalo's AB DeMarco, who was tied with Hergesheimer in the goals scored race, failed to get a goal last night but his teammates more than made up for it as they outlasted the Providence Reds, 9-7.

The Hershey Bears waited until the final period to score both their goals as they blanked the Springfield Indians, 2-0.

Tonight Providence goes to Hershey, St. Louis to Indianapolis, and Buffalo visits Cincinnati.

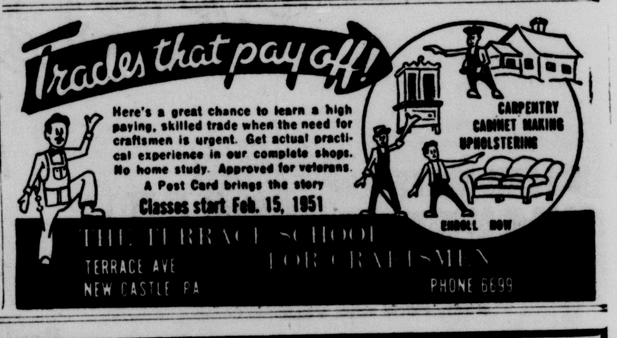
Titan Swimmers Top Tech Tankers

Westminster College swimmers nosed out Carnegie Tech tankmen, 34-32 yesterday in the Titans' home pool.

The victory was the fourth in five starts for the Titans and was decided in the final event when the Westminster relay quartet took the 400-yard free style event.

Tom McGrath, freshman star for Westminster, finished the 60-yard free style event in 30 seconds to set a new pool record in that division. The former fastest time stood at 35 seconds.

Bob Carpenter, the National League champion Phillies' "Mr. Money-Bags," wants it clearly understood today that he had nothing to do with sabotaging A. B. (Happy) Chandler as Baseball Commissioner.



HERE and THERE IN SPORTS LAND

OFFICERS will be elected for 1951 by the Lawrence County Sportsman's Council at McBride post, 522, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Grant street, Friday night. . . . For the second time recently, Bradley of Peoria was humbled, Detroit turning the basketball trick. The first defeat was administered by St. John's. So far, Bradley has won 16 of 18 games and Detroit's victory snapped a 25-game winning stretch at Peoria. Consequently, the Eagles have lost their top rating. . . . The NCAA has put a ban on live televising of football games. . . . Two years ago there was a question as to "Who was Who" between Billy Pozza and Elkins Brothers. Billy dilly-dallied with the smaller fry hereabouts, while Brothers went forth in search of "bigger game." Finally, Pozza forsook the ring but Elkins continued on and battles Bob Satterfield Friday night in New York. Here & There tried for three hours one Sunday to talk Manager Johnny Loccisano into permitting Pozza to fight Brothers at Flaherty field. At that time, a Pozza-Brothers fight would have grossed $5,000, but Johnny turned a deaf ear to the proposal. . . . Johnny Gilliland, named recently by city council to a position as city wage tax investigator, served several years as an Armorer in the Eighth Air Force in Europe. . . . Several days ago Here & There strolled into a place where persons who were, and yet are interested in boxing, were discussing boxing. They were Bill Bradley, middleweight, who intends to fight in the future under the management of Merle Richards of Detroit; Roy Smith, of the former pugilistic partnership of Jim Dygert and Smith, and who managed Lefty Arnold, Homer Gray and others; Phil Greer, treasurer of the Jolly bowl, for which the writer made matches, Dan Sweeney, once a heavyweight in the Jimmie Dime stable, and who boxed Bob Fitzsimmons in Bob's last fight at Williamsport, and Shorty Fessler, who for years was associated with Jimmie Dunn's stable in Cleveland. . . . Former Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane who was elected to the Ohio legislature from the Cleveland district, will visit this city in February. . . . They're calling Paul Brown "Win 'em All Brown." Southern California would like to woo "Win 'em All" from the Cleveland Browns. . . . GLORIA BARATTINI, who attended Peabody Conservatory of Music at Baltimore, has joined the Feminine Wrestling clique, according to Billy Wolfe of Columbus, who says her charms make her "whistle bait". Michigan led the nation last year in the number of hunting licenses issued, but trailed Pennsylvania in revenue collected. Michigan sold 1,031,035 licenses in 1950 for $2,944,855, up nearly $98,000 from 1949. Pennsylvania recorded 834,091 permits, a loss of 45,000 from 1949, but topped Michigan in revenue with $3,032,326, an increase of about $185,000. Pennsylvania has a higher fee for hunting than Michigan and 24,000 out-of-staters hunted in Pennsylvania compared to 12,000 in Michigan. . . . J. N. Federal Government Will Decline Gift Of Arlington Home

ARLINGTON, Va., Jan. 18.—(INS)—The federal government isn't going to accept the house and lot given to it by Miss Margaret E. Gruver, formerly of Arlington.

Miss Gruver deeded the house to U. S. to show her gratitude at living under our form of government and the freedom it allows.

But she added the condition that a Negro caretaker be permitted to live on the grounds.

W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of public buildings of the General Services Administration, said that "no statutory authority exists under which this administration is authorized to accept in behalf of the United States of America conditional donations of real property."

Arlington clerk of courts H. Bruce Green said that as far as he is concerned the house still belongs to the government, but he doesn't know what final disposition will be made.

New York Stocks

Stock Market Trend Is Lower

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The stock market weakened today under persistent profit-taking, although a few issues showed independent strength. Mounting talk of price controls was an unsettling factor.

International Paper was down almost a point in the industrials to 55½, while fractional losses were also sustained by General Motors, Chrysler, Bethlehem Steel and DuPont.

American Telephone attracted fair-sized demand and at one time was up ¾ to 153½.

Standard of New Jersey sagged ½ point to 98½ in the oils, while Anaconda and International Nickel were slightly easier in the metals.

Rails were mostly lower, although Denver & Rio Grande ran counter to the trend with an early rise of 1¼ points to 61¾. Southern Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio were fractionally easier.

The bond market churned around irregularly with the majority of rails easier.

that city 37 were hurt slightly and 150 were arrested.

At Milan some 500 were arrested.

Rome police took 300 in custody.

Approximately 100 were arrested at Novarra. Those seized included top Communist leaders.

Confers with Premier

At the start of his formal talks today on Italy's contribution to West European defense, Gen. Eisenhower conferred for 20 minutes alone with Italian Premier Alcide DeGasperi.

He later spent an adidtional hour with the premier, Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza and others in DeGasperi's study.

Subsequently Eisenhower spent 90 minutes with Italian Defense Minister Randolpho Pacciardi and Italy's top military chiefs. With them he examined Italy's present potential and plans to boost defenses.

Italy is to contribute three divisions to the Western European defense army. It was considered that the nation could make this contribution since Yugoslavia's present international position considerably shortens Italy's land defense front.

The American general climaxed his conference sessions with an official luncheon tendered by President Luigi Einaudi.

felled or are leaning awkwardly, meaning that they will have to be straightened or removed.

Before city streets are repaired too extensively next spring, Pa Newc suggests the removal of the remaining street car rails about the city where they have been buried and those that have not. Some of those that were covered are now exposed and make for dangerous driving.

Wednesday's welcome warm spell brought out many a housewife to scrub the winter's accumulation of dirt from the various front and rear porches. The work could be done effectively without the fear of the water freezing before the task was completed.

An outstanding feature in the 600 block of East Washington street, is the erection of a large electric clock high in front of the establishment of Bruce and Merreillees. The clock is colored white, with black figures and will be visible for quite a distance. It will no doubt be very noticeable to traffic passing through the city.

Wednesday proved to be one of the nicest days of the entire winter. The air had a balmy feeling to it, almost like spring, and the warmer temperatures cleared away most of the snow and ice which had accumulated from the recent snow.

Mrs. Marie Davidson of 205 North Walnut street, reports to Pa Newc that on December 25, she lost her wallet. Following her insertion of an ad in The News, R. E. Reno of R. D. 1, returned the billfold. She is happy for the effectiveness of The News ad and the kindness of Mr. Reno.

As a result of the warmer weather of the past two days, many of the streets of the city are now being finally freed of the accumulations of snow that had remained on them since the record downfall just after Thanksgiving Day.

FARMS

HARRISBURG—In the average size of farms in Pennsylvania, Potter county in 1949 ranked first, with 158.3 acres, according to the Department of Agriculture. Susquehanna county ranked a close second with an average of 151.8 acres per farm. Other Pennsylvania counties among the first 10, in the order given, were Tioga, Bradford, Sullivan, Bedford, Wayne, Fulton, Pike, Somerset, and Centre.

and one-half million. Old and new savers' balances had increased better than $1,100,000.00. Dividends were paid amounting to $163,729.00. Also during the year the Association's various reserve funds were increased by an additional $165,841.00.

It was also indicated that better than 500 families had been assisted in acquiring a home, either by purchase or building. This was in addition to 225 local mortgages purchased from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation amounting to $278,000.00.

During the year it became necessary to expand the Association's quarters and also the personnel to adequately handle the increased business of the last few years.

Directors Named

At the meeting four directors were elected. Two, Clyde N. Lockhart and Norman E. Clark, were re-elected from previous service; and Dr. James D. Crawford and Robert A. Weingartner were new additions to the board. Both are well known local business and professional men who have contributed much to many worthwhile civic projects in the community. The other directors whose terms did not expire are: Sam H. McGoun, George H. Hamilton, Harry L. Elder, Carl Paisley, Joseph C. Williams, and Norman Ehrlich.

Following the Shareholders' meeting, the board met for organization and named the following officers: Sam H. McGoun, President; George W. Hamilton, Vice-President; Norman E. Clark, Executive Vice-President and Secretary; Robert S. Houk, Treasurer; Roy W. Hazen, Solicitor; Ralph A. Cooper, Assistant Solicitor.

MILK PRODUCTION

HARRISBURG — Production of milk on Pennsylvania farms dropped sharply in some areas in late November as wintry weather gripped the State. Milk output for the month totaled 429 million pounds, eight per cent below October and almost three per cent below November, 1949, the State Department of Agriculture announced today following Federal-State surveys.

BARLEY

HARRISBURG—Lancaster county leads all counties in the production and value of barley, the State Department of Agriculture reports. In 1949 it produced 631,760 bushels of barley valued at $568,580. The next top ranking Pennsylvania counties in the production and value of barley were Franklin, Chester, York, Cumberland, Berks, Adams, Dauphin, Bucks, and Lebanon.

The jack rabbit received its name from the fact that its long ears were thought to resemble those of a jackass.

Controversy On Nominee

Reappointment Of Cabinet Member Made Under Pressure

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18—(INS)—Governor-elect Fine's reappointment of retired Admiral Milo F. Draemel as secretary of forests and waters was made after heavy pressure was exerted by outgoing Governor Duff. Many Republican leaders in addition to top Democrats were opposed to Draemel's reappointment. One high Democrat said if Draemel's name is sent to the senate for confirmation, where Republicans lack four of the needed votes to assure approval, Democrats won't have to work for its defeat because of the known GOP antagonism. One Republican tabbed Draemel as "dictatorial and arbitrary" in handling the department and said he was not appreciative of advice from suboridnates. He admitted that Draemel was highly successful in pushing the Schuylkill river cleanup to completion but complained the methods used were "high handed". Duff long has considered Draemel to be one of the finest appointments made during his four years tenure.

Although no one has doubted the attraction of the Pennsylvania farm show to pull hundreds of thousands of visitors, there has been some question about the method used by officials to estimate the daily crowds. One farm show official admitted the number always is hard to figure but explained that experts estimate the crowd by sizing up the number of people in the aisles and judging the number of cars in parking lots around the 14-acre exposition building.

The state highway planning commission threw a stiff punch at the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association's campagin to lift the ceiling on truck weights in the master plan for road improvements. In its recommendations the commission stated: "Stricter enforcement of laws pertaining to truck weights, overall widths and length of load is needed". The commission added that "penalties for violations of these laws should be stiffened". The commission also cautioned against general revision of weight restrictions and said they should "not be undertaken until the net results of truck load tests currently being conducted in Maryland by a group of state highway departments are available." The tests are made on a measured mile where heavy trucks are above average in the traffic count.

Senate majority leader John M. Walker will introduce a resolution in the upper chamber to officially recognize the Pennsylvania Legislative Correspondents' Association. The newsmen's group long has been recognized by the house of representatives but has been admitted "behind the rail" in the senate only as a matter of courtesy. The only known reason for the lag in senate recognition is that its members never got around to conforming to the house action. Officially, members of the association are entitled to certain space in the house and it is so stated in the rules.

U.N. Acts To Spur Free Information

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 18,—Representatives of 15 nations met here to try again to write a U. N. convention on freedom of spokesman, however, expressed belief there was little possibility at this time of an agreement which would advance the cause of freedom of information.

The task of the committee is to try to consolidate several drafts of the proposed convention which have been produced since the U. N. first tackled the problem at the Geneva conference in 1948. It will report to the Economic and Social Council at its summer session and the council then will consider the advsiability of calling another global conference to act on the new draft.

TAX TROUBLE

BELLEFONTAINE, O.—(INS)—Taxes are a current touchy subject around Bellefontaine officialdom these days. The school levy approved by the voters for next year may leave the schools without funds. The ballots read "tax year 1951" while the school board meant "calendar year 1951". There's a difference in Ohio. The state collects taxes a year late and "tax year 1951" would mean 1952.
